Transactional analysis workshop set Nov. 29

A training workshop in transactional analysis is scheduled for Nov. 29 through Dec. 1 at the Episcopal Church Parish House in Ocean Springs, and is open to the general public for participation.

The workshop, which will be geared primarily to training in the understanding and employment of transactional analysis by the layman, will be under the direction of Dr. Maurice D. Needham, internationally known psychologist in New Orleans.

From the average layman the question arises: what is transactional analysis?

Transactional analysis, or TA, grew out of the impatience of the late Dr. Eric Berne, California physician and psychiatrist, with the high cost, slow procedure and the lack of change of many of his psychiatric patients.

Another origin was Dr. Berne's keen clinical observations of how individuals make changes in their behavior, given the right ambience, by their own insights and commitments.

He developed before his death a system that he termed "an extension of psychotherapy." Dr. Thomas A. Harris has described TA as "a unified system of individual and social psychology that is comprehensive at the theoretical level and effective at the applied level."

Two of the major principles leading to the TA theory that Dr. Berne developed include the theory that every person writes, when he is still a small child. The scenario, or script, that he will follow for his entire adult life - unless he makes re-decisions and changes.

The script is written under the enormous, and too often, damaging, influence of parents and surrogate parents and may be adhered to for life.

Another principle is that the decision made as a child to be a winner, a loser, or a commonplace person will prevail throughout one's life, irrevocably affecting one's relationships and entire lifestyle - unless he makes the decision to change.

And that principle is the crux of transactional analysis; TA gives the individual the opportunity to change his attitudes, his decisions and therefore his lifestyle. Effecting the change is made possible through a contract with a counselor.

As the name implies, TA deals with an analysis of the transactions in interpersonal relations, i.e., how we talk and act with other people. We function in our daily lives out of our ego states, acting either like our parents, as an adult, or out of our "little child" who hasn't changed over the years. In analysis, these ego states are identified as the Parent, the Adult and the Child Ego state.

One of the major values of employing TA in counseling is the immediacy of results made possible through the system. Once the decision to change has been reached, and a contract (or acceptance of responsibility) made with the counselor, the individual can begin immediately to change. In traditional psychiatric methods, a lot of years and a lot of money were usually spent working laboriously through painstaking probing into one's innermost, or subconscious level, to discover the reasons for unacceptable behavior. More time was then spent helping the individual to accept his psychological makeup and learning to live with it.

A rather oversimplified explanation of the two systems is that psychotherapy teaches the individual to discover himself as he really is and then learn to live with it. TA helps him to discover his good points or potentials and how to change his undesirable behavior.

The Ocean Springs workshop will begin Nov. 29 with a 7 to 11 p.m. session as an introduction to TA.

Saturday sessions start with an 8 a.m. to noon meeting on irrational messages and script analysis. A 1 to 6 p.m. session covers analysis of volunteer couples' life scripts.

Sunday work in group sessions will be held from 1 to 5 p.m.

Fee for participation in the training workshop is $25 per person. Advanced registration with a $10 deposit is required for inclusion in the group session as the number of groups must be known before the workshop begins.

Further information about the workshop is available from Dr. Walter Venters, 111 Azalea Dr., Long Beach, president of the Miss. Assn. of Transactional Analysts, or by writing Dr. Maurice Needham, 2709 Camp St., New Orleans, La. 70130, Telephone (504) 895-8800.

Moran expressed thanks to Joe Williams and Donald J. Joyner for volunteer work they have done to the church site which the city is leasing as recreational grounds.

Jimmy Savarese moved that the Coast Federal Savings & Loan be allowed to have a construction office trailer at a site west of the A&P store. The motion passed unanimously.

Gino Scialdone, representing the Children's International Villages requested the city to donate money to village fund. The Village will be held in Long Beach in 1976 with 11 year-olds from all over the world attending. The matter will be considered at the next meeting.

Supervisors fight back

"Mandatory legislation is killing us - we can't stand anymore," Sam N. Alford, president of the Mississippi Association of Supervisors said in a meeting before Pearl River Junior College's county supervisors and legislators.

Following Alford's comments, the members of the board of supervisors from the six counties in the Pearl River district adopted unanimously a 17-point legislative program at the fall meeting on the PRC campus.

Alford's primary emphasis was directed to asking the legislators to provide funds to support multiple programs that are being passed down to county supervisors to administer.

The supervisors also endorsed a public official ethics law for all government officials and indicated support of open or "Sunshine" meetings. A request was made for the State Land Commission to survey, make and classify 16 section school land.

"Bill No. 975 dealing with county purchasing continues to be disliked, primarily because of the administrative burden of all the paper work necessary," Alford reported.

The MAS president then reiterated his point by calling the bill "the most ungodly thing ever passed on any human being."

In the proposed program the supervisors are asking that this bill be amended to eliminate the excessive bookkeeping requirements and the time loss in making purchases. "We feel this bill should be applicable to all agencies, not just supervisors," Alford added.

"According to this bill, we are the only crooks in the state," he commented. The supervisors also offered a resolution on electric service in Mississippi, urging all electric power suppliers to work together to develop sound conservation recommendations which may be logically carried out by citizens.

As part of the meetings educational program, presentations were given on the importance and role of the board minutes and the Wage and Hour Law.

"County government is on the move and is the fastest changing government in the United States today. It is basic to our 'grass roots' government," Alford remarked in closing.

More than 50 supervisors, board attorneys, chancery clerks, and PRC board members attended the morning conference representing all six district counties.

Three arrested for Long Beach burglary

A 21-year-old and two 15-year-old white males were arrested Monday by Long Beach police and charged with the burglary of Sound Sanctuary on West Railroad Street. Stereo and record equipment valued at $320 had been taken from Sound Sanctuary after closing hours on Nov. 7.

Wayne James Martin, 21, of 321 East Second St. was arrested at his home by police and booked at Harrison County jail on charges of burglary and grand larceny. Martin is still being held under $10,000 bond.

The two juveniles were turned over to Harrison Family Court authorities. Judge Lawrence Semski said Wednesday that one of the youths has been adjudicated a delinquent and is now pending disposition. The other youth has not yet been adjudicated.

Judge Semski said that this was the first offense for one of the youths and the second offense for the other. He also said that one of the juveniles has been released into the custody of his parents and the other is still being detained.

State news in brief

CITIZENS URGED TO GET INVOLVED

Governor Bill Waller last week called for greater participation by the people in Mississippi's State government.

During the first of six stops in the Move the Capitol program, Waller told an audience in Petal that "the time has come for the people to become informed of and involved in Mississippi State government." The Governor said that many of his 1975 legislative proposals were aimed at giving the people a greater voice in the affairs of State government.

"This Move the Capitol program is designed not only to let you know what our proposals are, but, more important, to allow you to have some input as to what you want the 1975 legislative session to do," the Governor said.

The capitol will be moved to Booneville on November 21, Brookhaven on November 26, Greenwood on December 3, Meridian on December 10, and Moss Point on December 12.

The Governor said each program offers students the opportunity of questioning State officials during a morning session and a meeting with civic and community leaders during a noon luncheon.

Waller praised local officials "for taking the lead in planning and promoting the Move the Capitol program."

EMS REGIONALIZATION SUGGESTED

The Emergency Medical Services Division of the Mississippi State Board of Health has recommended multi-county regionalization of ambulance service to ensure emergency medical services in areas where that service is now nonexistent or inadequate.

Wade Spruill, director of the Division, said, "Regionalization will provide for coordinated delivery of health care services in a designated geographical area under emergency conditions."

He said that supervisors of the counties may act to provide this regional service.

Spruill also noted that the Federal EMS Act of 1973 "clearly encourages the inclusion of rural areas in the development of regional plans."

HOTLINE IS HOT ITEM

Governor Waller said he was "very enthusiastic" about the response to the newly installed Governor's Hotline.

The Governor's Hotline is a toll-free, direct telephone information and assistance service operated by the Governor's Office.

Waller said hundreds of callers took advantage of the service in its first week of operation. He urged "any citizen with a problem or question about State government to call the toll-free number."

The Governor's Hotline number is 1-800-222-7629.

WALLER IN SNOWBERG

Governor Waller is attending a meeting of the Executive Committee of the National Governors' Conference in Snowberg, Utah this week.

A spokesman for the Governor said this meeting will involve a seminar for new governors and discussion of other issues of national interest.

Waller was one of nine governors elected to the Executive Committee during the 1974 National Governors' Conference in Seattle, Washington. The Executive Committee serves the policy making board of the National Governors' Conference.

STATE AGENCIES COMBINE

Two state agencies have signed an agreement to cooperate with each other in expanding their programs to assist Mississippi's senior citizens. Max Cole, State Commissioner of Public Welfare, and Horace Kerr, director of the State Council on Aging, have signed a mutual agreement by which the two agencies will work together in providing services to Mississippi's elderly citizens.

The agreement states that the two departments will work together to provide services to the elderly aimed at allowing them "to live with independence, with dignity in their homes, through the provision of social services designed to prevent premature institutionalization of adults and to deinstitutionalize those adults who can return to their homes or community-based programs."

VET SCHOOL PLANNED

Development plans for the School of Veterinary Medicine at Mississippi State University are proceeding on schedule, according to a report this week to the College of Veterinary Medicine Industry Advisory Committee at Mississippi State University.

Dr. James G. Miller, Dean of the College, said, "If everything goes as scheduled, we will begin recruiting our first faculty members in 1975 and our first pre-veterinary students will be enrolled in 1976."

The School of Veterinary Medicine at Mississippi State was established by the 1974 Session of the Mississippi Legislature after receiving strong backing from Governor Waller.

Stebbins named chairman

Edwin A. Stebbins, President of the Harrison County Unit of the American Cancer Society has announced the selection of Charles A. Ponder as 1975 Crusade chairman.

"The annual Crusade is a combination drive for education and fund raising," said Mr. Stebbins. "Therefore, we need someone with Mr. Ponder's ability to organize the Crusade to reach all the people of Harrison County."

Ponder is asst. vice-president of First Mississippi National Bank at Edgewater Plaza. He is a graduate of the University of Southern Mississippi where he received his Master of Business Administration in 1969.

He served in the United States Army and received the Combat Infantry Badge, Bronze Star, Army Commendation with "V", and the Purple Heart.

He is a member of the Biloxi Chamber of Commerce, U.S.M. Alumni Assoc., American Legion Post No. 33, Treasure Oaks Country Club, Treasurer Edgewater Plaza Merchants Association and was co-chairman of the Finance Committee for the 275th Anniversary Celebration.

NO FOOD STAMPS
The Hancock County Welfare office will not issue food stamps Nov. 22 and 23, a spokesman said, due to the Thanksgiving holiday. However, the office will be open for other business on Friday, Nov. 23.

A native of Laurel, Miss. They are the parents of two children and live in Ocean Springs. Mr. Ponder is married to the former Elizabeth Rahaim.

Attorney General warns of fraudulent investment scheme

Attorney General A. F. Summer alerted Mississippi citizens to a fraudulent scheme that has appeared in the state relating to the purchase of silver and gold as an investment.

Summer said his Office of Consumer Protection has received information involving a large number of recently formed corporations which have used commissioned salesmen to solicit orders for the purchase of silver. Summer went on to say that no fewer than ten of these companies have become insolvent in the recent past in various parts of the country.

"In each instance, substantial sums of money were lost by investors who failed to receive delivery of silver they had purchased by certified checks or money orders," Summer stated.

"One investor paid $19,992.96 to a western firm for 2,670 ounces of silver. Within a short time, the purchaser was notified of a "delay" in delivery, and within three months of his order, the firm petitioned for reorganization under the federal bankruptcy laws and the consumer lost his entire investment."

Attorney General Summer stated that a member of his Consumer Protection staff has confirmed that a number of other companies have been operating in other states, utilizing virtually the same scheme of taking numerous orders for silver and then declaring either bankruptcy or insolvency before delivering the silver.

Summer emphasized that the companies are not related to the legitimate sale of silver through commodity brokers or through established numismatic sources.

"These circumstances warrant the exercise of extreme care by anyone contemplating the purchase of silver," Summer said.

The apparent attractiveness of silver and gold as a hedge against inflation has induced a large number of persons to invest their life savings in this commodity and many millions of dollars have been lost to unscrupulous operators who failed to live up to their contractual obligations."

Before any person delivers a certified check or otherwise pays for the purchase of silver, he or she should consider the following points:

How long has the seller been in business in your area?

Have you spoken to your financial consultant or banker about the reputation of the seller and the advisability of your investment?

Has the seller asked you to provide a money order or certified check prior to the delivery of the silver?

Do you know whether the company receiving your check has an existing inventory to fill your order? Have you contacted the company's other customers to determine whether delivery has been made as promised?

Have you checked with local and state officials to determine if any complaints have been lodged against the company?

If the salesperson claims to be bonded, does this bond protect your investment if delivery is not made by the selling company or does it just protect the company against the salesperson? Have you been shown a copy of the bond?

If you have already purchased silver, have you contacted the Attorney General's Office immediately after learning of any delay in delivery?

Summer urged that each prospect carefully consider the check list. If any question exists, an attorney or financial consultant should be contacted, he said. "If the investment is made, and a certified check is sent to another state, it is almost impossible for us to trace those funds or secure restitution," Summer stated. "It is, therefore, extremely important that consumers consider all the factors we have suggested before investing."

Disputed payment resolved

A dispute between Waveland contractor Terence Feeney and the Hancock County School Board over final payment for a sewage treatment plant installed by Feeney at Hancock North Central School was apparently resolved this week.

Bay St. Louis attorney William Frisbie, representing Feeney, accepted a check for $7,780 on behalf of his client Tuesday after resident engineer, Frank Dunaway, sent a letter to the school board accepting the sewage plant.

Payment on the plant had been withheld for several months due to Dunaway's refusal to recommend acceptance of the plant to the board.

Dunaway claimed that the plant did not meet all engineering specifications. All but 10 percent of the original $38,000 contract has now been paid to Feeney.

School board attorney Joseph Cox said that the remainder would be paid after the board had advertised for all claims that might be outstanding against the contractor.

Unstuffing the ballot box

Poll workers were busy tabulating votes following the recent Long Beach alderman election won by Michael Rutledge. Votes are taken out of the box one-by-one, called out, then placed onto the string as other workers keep the tally.

Rutledge defeats Braud in runoff

Michael Rutledge, a 28-year-old self-employed plumber, defeated Bert Braud in a special runoff election for the vacant Long Beach alderman seat Tuesday. The complete but unofficial returns showed that Rutledge had garnered 385 votes or 68 percent of the total. Braud received 333 votes.

The runoff was first called for November 19, but a subsequent check and then a verification from the state attorney general's office showed that the election had to be held one week after the first primary. Mayor Maxwell said that the less than small turnout was not a result of confusion over the election date but rather that the percentage was "about right for an election where only two candidates are running." The 918 votes represents less than 29 percent of the 3,208 registered voters in Long Beach.

Rutledge received 336 votes from west Long Beach and 249 from the east. Braud drew vote totals of 129 and 204, from the west and the east respectively.

Following his victory, Rutledge told the press, "I am delighted that the people of Long Beach gave me such an overwhelming majority which shows their confidence. I hope I can live up to it."

Rutledge will possibly sit in at the next city council meeting. He will fill the vacant alderman seat of Mayor Sam Maxwell. His present term will expire in July 1977.

Engineering firm functions outlined

Associated Consultants, Inc. opened its Gulf Coast facilities at 104 Highway 90, Bay St. Louis, in June of 1973. Richard G. Simmons, corporate secretary and a registered professional engineer in Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, and Florida, is manager-director.

The facility was opened in Bay St. Louis as a means of expanding engineering and surveying services to the coastal area. The engineering functions of the office are consulting, civil, sanitary, highway, structural, and surveying and mapping. This includes, but is not limited to, design, inspection and contract administration of the following: sewage collector systems and treatment plants, water distribution systems and treatment plants, drainage facilities, roadways and highways, subdivisions, surveying and mapping of individual lots or subdivisions, and recreational facilities such as camping parks. Included in these jobs might be the preparation of the necessary documents to satisfy government agencies.

The office staff includes in addition to Richard G. Simmons, Donald E. Walker, civil engineering graduate from Mississippi State University. The secretary, Linda Gremillion, attended Jeff Davis Junior College and graduated with a B.S. degree in business education from Mississippi University for Women. Randy Pernicaro, the draftsman, holds an A.S. degree in design technology from Pearl River Junior College.

Survey crews composed mainly of local residents, are under the supervision of Dwane Walton, one of the firm's engineering aides.

The firm has four locations in the southern half of the State, each in touch with the other offices, and because of the various educational and experience backgrounds of the engineers, Associated Consultants can give comprehensive civil engineering service to its clients.

New Orleans bound UFO spotted

Football season is here and the seasonal phenomenon which sober people whisper about is upon us. On Monday night at 9:15, Mrs. Nunez C. Pilet of Highland Drive in Bay St. Louis spotted an unidentified flying object.

Mrs. Pilet said she noticed the well-illuminated object with "star-like light effects" as it traveled rather swiftly "in a northeast to south direction." In a matter of less than two minutes, the object was out of sight, last seen going in a path along the highway leading to New Orleans.

Mrs. Pilet said that she noticed the UFO as she was drawing her draperies before going to bed. Sweet dreams, Mrs. Pilet.

Coastians will walk to aid crippled children

A massive march, involving possibly 1,000 Coast citizens, is being organized to aid Coast area crippled children.

Spearheaded by members of the Crippled Children Foundation in Hancock County, the Pledge Walk is being organized to raise money for the Crippled Children Center going up in Kiln, Miss. U.S. Navy Seabees in Long Beach will build the Center but money is needed for building materials.

Some 600 persons have already joined the list of those to participate in the Pledge Walk, scheduled for Nov. 24 at the Edgewater Plaza in Biloxi. The walk will begin at 12:30 p.m. on the beach side of the Plaza and will proceed five miles west toward Gulfport, then return to the Plaza.

Among those committed to participating are State Representative Earl "Buck" Ladner, WPUP radio announcers Henry Heitzmann and George Sutter, and entire staffs from WQID radio and WVM radio led by station manager Bob Lee. Also planning to "walk" are WVM's Lance Carson, Dave Vincent and QID-FM's Rick Tarrant. Public relations director for the Sun-Herald, John McFarland will join the crowd of marchers.

Groups of students from Coast area schools will walk, under the following group captains: Bay Sr. High, Debbie Langenbacker and Keith Mitchell; Bay Jr. HI, Bobby Jo Saucier and Michelle LaFontaine; Hancock North Central, Debbie Cox and Erma Necaise; West Jr. HI in Gulfport, Rene Taylor; Coast Episcopal High, Ann Johnson and Regina Castellan; D'Iberville High, Gary Blake and Veberry Quave; Michele Jr. High, Jennifer Pierotick and Alicia Hunn.

Any students wishing to participate may contact the captains in their respective schools or call march chairman, Mrs. Charlotte Jacob, Biloxi.

After the march, a number of activities have been planned for participants. Two rock bands will provide entertainment for young marchers and everyone participating will be treated to a free wiener roast and beach party on the beach in front of the Plaza.

Among prizes to be awarded to those collecting the most money will be a first prize of $100 cash to the individual getting the most pledges, and a free coke dance sponsored by a radio station for the school group getting the most students walking.

Dave Turner, Foundation president, said the organization is seeking donors for the cash prize money, and civic and social organizations are sought to man the rest stops and free refreshment and first aid stations along the march route.

Another prize will be awarded to the marcher carrying the best sign in the event. To be eligible for judging, signs must have a WPUP sticker on the back.

Local merchants especially in the Bay area, have been most generous with donations of food for the beach party.

Turner said. He reminded that the $100 cash prize money is tax deductible, as are all pledges made to the marchers. Wide media coverage will be afforded to those business firms donating merchandise or money toward the Pledge Walk.

Colling's Corner

By E.S. Colling

Some people seem to swim better upstream and to reach their goals by doing things the hard way. The fact that they are always bucking the tide of life just seems to make them fight harder.

One of these people (you might call them anti-bodies!) was the outstanding Mississippian, James K. Vardaman, whose name always was, and will be, associated with radical politics. Born in 1861, the son of a Confederate soldier, he began, to practice law at Winona, Mississippi, just after his 21st birthday; it was told that on the day he opened his law office, his cash capital amounted to one fifty-cent piece which he dropped into the hat of a church fund-raising solicitor. He was almost immediately successful as a lawyer and editor of the local newspaper.

From the beginning Vardaman was an "agiter". His first crusade was against liquor which he ousted from his home county in 1883 after a bitter fight in which an attempt on his life was made by a local tavernkeeper. From then on, Vardaman was in the thick of every political battle and was successful in being elected to the State legislature for three terms, during one of which he was Speaker of the House. He was a captain, and later major, of infantry during the Spanish-American war, and after the war he succeeded finally in becoming Governor of the State but was again defeated at the polls in his bid for a second term. Vardaman was always running for something; he was what is known today as a spellbinder or a rabble-rouser, riding to his meetings in a great lumber wagon drawn by a dozen yokes of white oxen and wearing his black hair to shoulder length over an immaculate white suit.

His next try was for the U.S. Senate, and again he lost at the polls, but later, aided by his fiery editorials which he published in his newspapers in Greenwood, he attacked the nominee who had beaten him and was enthusiastically nominated in the next (1911) primary and at last won election to the Senate. But the Mississippi Senator immediately found himself in another battle, this time with President Wilson over the latter's policies on the war with Germany.

Once more Vardaman took the issue to the people, but found that he had drawn a lemon, for the public was hell-bent for war with the Kaiser, and after a bitter row with the President he was defeated by Pat Harrison in the 1918 election. Still fighting, Vardaman ran again for the Senate in 1922 but lost in the second primary after winning in the first.

And that was all for Vardaman. Sadly broken in body and mind, he retired to Birmingham, Alabama, his wife's former home, where he spent his remaining years until his death in 1930.

Rockefeller issue shows difficulty of being rich

F. Scott Fitzgerald: "The rich are different from us."
Ernest Hemingway: "Yes, they have more money."

By BENJAMIN SHORE
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — President Ford's nomination of super-rich Nelson Rockefeller to be vice president has, at least, confirmed the simple wisdom of Fitzgerald's observation. Whether Rockefeller will prove to be too different and fail to win congressional confirmation may depend in large measure on how quickly the Congress, press and public can learn to accept richness as casually as Hemingway did.

Rich people, as Rockefeller has shown, behave differently with their money. But when the rich are also politicians, and when they aspire to the presidency, and when Congress and the press begin to probe and ask questions about all the money, and it's the year of post-Watergate morality, the situation becomes difficult to assess.

Rockefeller, it turns out, has given away or loaned nearly $2 million in cash to friends and associates, long-time staff assistants who were in a financial jam or were leaving and thus, in Rockefeller's eyes, deserving of a token of gratitude.

Rockefeller gave $50,000 to Henry Kissinger when he left after 15 years on his staff to enter government service.

He gave $100,000 to Press Secretary Hugh Morrow, who had taken out huge bank loans to finance the college education of five children and pay the bills of two serious family illnesses.

Rockefeller also gave $550,000 to William J. Roman when he ended an 18-year association on the Rockefeller staff. Spokesman Morrow compared the gift to "the year-end bonus given to executives of large corporations."

Some critics in the press and on Capitol Hill are having difficulty grasping the motivation behind such largess. Was Rockefeller trying to buy the loyalty of men like Kissinger (who rose to a position of considerable power dealing with matters that affect the Rockefeller family's worldwide financial interests) or like Roman (who today is chairman of the powerful New York and New Jersey Port Authority)?

And why the forgiveness last year of the $26,000 balance on a loan to L. Judson Morhouse, former New York state Republican Party chairman? Morhouse also received pardon from then Gov.

Rockefeller after Morhouse's conviction for bribery and a prison sentence. Rockefeller explained the pardon by citing Morhouse's ill health.

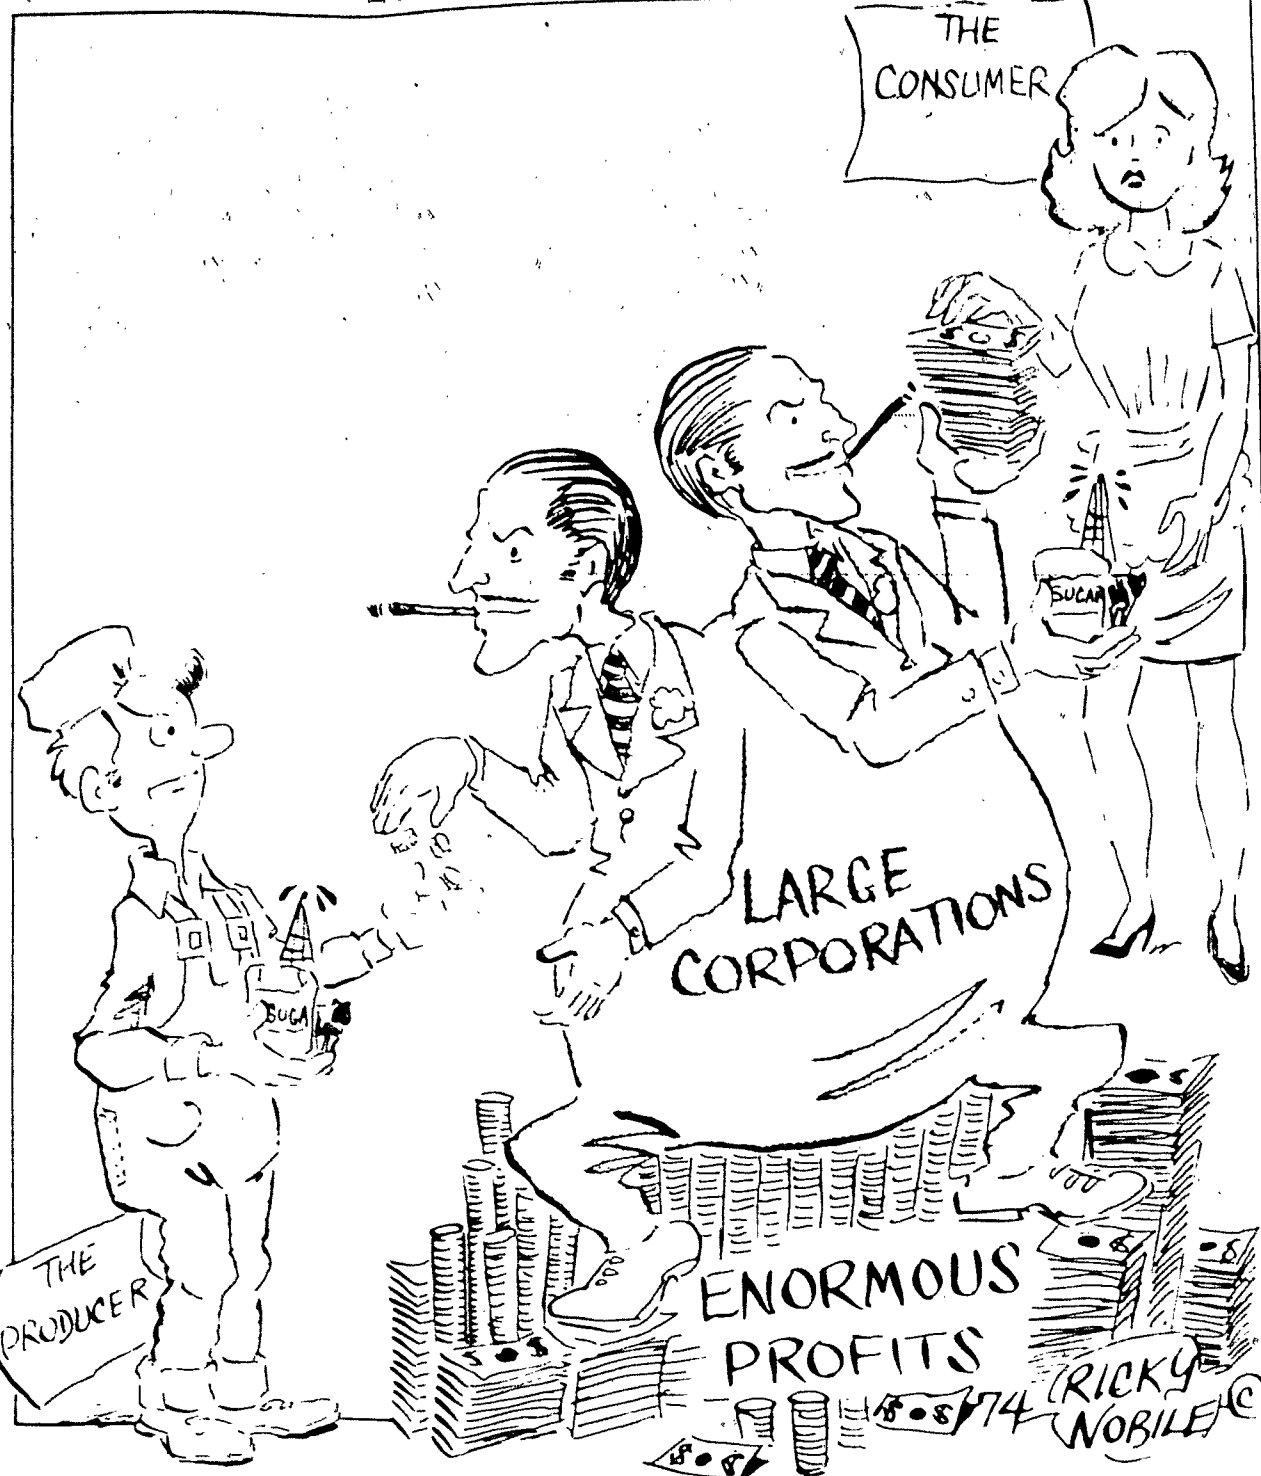

Yet Capitol Hill still seems concerned about the man President Ford wants as vice president.

In addition to the Morhouse cash gift and pardon, there's the matter of Rockefeller's brother, Laurence, working with the governor's reelection campaign manager in 1970, paying $60,000 for the writing, printing and distribution of a book deliberately unflattering to Rockefeller's Democratic opponent, Arthur Goldberg. The book was simply a hatchet job — no one disputes that — but by post-Watergate standards, it strikes some critics as falling into the category of "dirty tricks," the kind that ooze out of campaigns that have too much money.

And then there's the matter of the congressionally ordered Internal Revenue Service tax audit revealing that Rockefeller improperly claimed certain deductions over the last six years and must pay the government an additional $901,718.

The IRS, as in the case of Richard Nixon's back taxes, is assessing 6 per cent interest on the back taxes but no penalty payments.

THE MIDDLE MAN

Our Readers Write

Dear Sir:

Since our letter to you of Oct. 31, 1974, we have received many calls as to why we stated that we are able to aid the officials of the two communities with animal welfare but while we work on cruelty cases in Hancock County, that is all we are able to do. We explain in depth to the callers, now we will try to reach all of you who are interested and may want to know.

Hancock County was founded in 1812. The humane movement was not begun until 1973. When the county was in its early stages, the population, both human and animal, did not warrant any great plans to control animals. So no provisions were made for them. No blue-prints were formulated as a control gap toward the day that society would need a barrier.

However, eventually, the population reached a stage where not only were humanitarians aroused by the neglect and downright cruelties they experienced and witnessed but also, people as a whole became accustomed to their benevolent government, both on a federal and local level, taking care of the unpleasant aspects of life for them. The public not only expected relief from the burdensome and steadily growing (and in some cases outgrowing) population of the animals, but they demanded it. "Somebody dumped these dogs out on me. Why should I be expected to feed them? But I can't stand seeing hungry, skin-and-bones dogs begging for food. Somebody has to help us," was the recurrent cry.

It was in search of this elusive "someone" that our society learned a great deal. It is common knowledge that the board of supervisors controls the administration of laws in Hancock County. Upon investigation, we were informed that the board was powerless to help the people of the county with animal control because no law was so written in the state code enabling them to act. The supervisors were sympathetic to the cause realizing it was a growing national problem, not confined to a local scene but merely a part of the overall picture.

Our representatives, who appeared often and consistently at open meetings of the board, were told that it would require a state law to allow the Hancock County board of supervisors to aid their constituents. To show their good faith and their awareness of the increasingly troublesome problem, the board gave the society a resolution to the effect that when such a law was passed by the state, the board would act.

In the 1974 Session of the Mississippi legislature, a law was passed allowing the governing authorities of Jackson, Harrison and Hancock Counties to regulate the running at large of animals within the county boundaries. This law amended the previous law which gave cities the right to regulate animals. This law means that under the County board of supervisors, a county dog warden and a county dog pound may be established, founded by the county. With this law in hand the Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc., went back to the board of supervisors meeting.

We were then told that there was a matter of funding to consider. They told us that that important part of the program is now under study by persons in authority who are able to help and speed the program on its way. At this time if any delays are present, it is because of the board of supervisors lack of funds or unwillingness to spend what is available.

So this is the answer of the Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc., to our many friends who want to know. Especially to those who have problems that need solving. When the funding comes through, we will be delighted to aid and abet the county. We will change our name to "The Hancock County Humane Society, Inc." and we will be all for one and one for all.

Sincerely,
Bay-Waveland Humane Society, Inc.

Dear Mr. Hall:

In this day and time with crime at an all time high, public apathy and the so-called "don't want to get involved" attitudes of so many, it is indeed a most wonderful experience to encounter not only a truly honest person but one who will go out of their way to extent help to someone they don't even know.

Recently, on a vacation trip through your state, I was unfortunate in losing my wallet which not only contained money but numerous credit cards as well as all my identification. Upon returning home, I was informed by my son that a woman had called to inform me that she had found my wallet and would return it to me. Today, I received the wallet in the mail with all the money, credit cards and identification intact.

I believe that a public commendation in your newspaper for Mrs. T. Birdsall of Route No. 1, Box 390, Millers General Store is in order and I would greatly appreciate it if you would print an article praising Mrs. Birdsall for her honesty and helpfulness in returning my wallet to me.

Very Sincerely,
Mrs. Helen W. Moser

Dear Mr. and Mrs. Cater,
Just a note to let you know we finally arrived safely and are now back in Houston.

We had such a nice vacation and surely did enjoy meeting you lovely people in Waveland. Biloxi, has been one of our favorite spots to visit for years - now, it looks as though we will stop (at Waveland) before we get there.

Remember the Doubloons you gave us from the Krewe of Nereids parade? I have asked Chuck to make me a necklace out of them. Maybe you could get your manufacturer of the doubloons to make you some souvenir necklaces, bracelets or key chains as added attractions or maybe some fund raisers, I have enclosed a few sketches.

Again, I want you to know how much we enjoyed meeting you and we hope to see you all again, maybe next year.

Sincerely,
Frances Ely

Veterans Information

EDITOR'S NOTE: Veterans and their families are asking thousands of questions concerning the benefits their Government provides for them through the Veterans Administration. Below are some representative queries. Additional information may be obtained at any VA office.

Q - My GI Bill allowance from the Veterans Administration is two weeks late. What should I do?

A - If there's a Vet Rep (VA representative) on your campus, check with him. Otherwise, write to the VA regional office which has your claim file, giving your name, claim number and address.

Q - Do husbands and widowers of female veterans have the same eligibility for Veterans Administration benefits as wives and widows of male veterans?

A - Yes. For purposes of VA benefits, the term "wife" includes husbands of female veterans and "widow" includes widowers of female veterans. (See PL 92-540, Oct. 1972.)

Q - Does the Veterans Administration pay anything toward costs of burial plots for veterans in private cemeteries in states which have no burial space in their national cemeteries?

A - Yes. VA pays up to $150 in plot and interment costs of veterans not buried in national cemeteries. This benefit was authorized in June 1973 under PL 93-43.

BYGONE DAYS

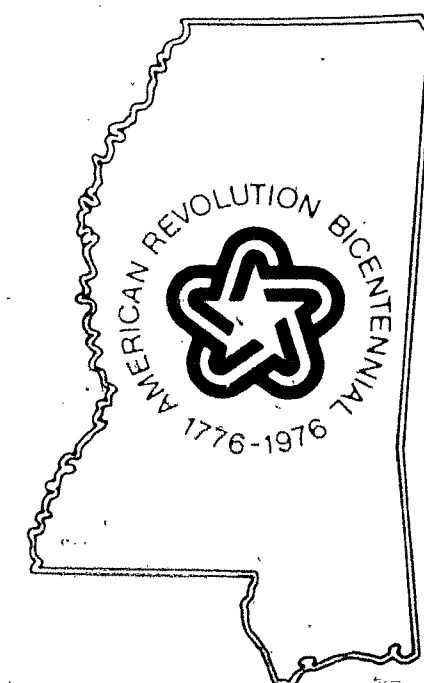

5 YEARS AGO... Last Friday a group of interested Bay St. Louis citizens visited Eunice, Louisiana, to get a first hand look at progress made during the last few years in that community. In 1964, this community had a major problem, the downtown business section was dying. Shopping centers, located on both ends of town, further damaged the downtown economy. Today Eunice is a thriving community. A completely remodeled Downtown Shopping Plaza, comprising a four block area, stands as a model program.

10 YEARS AGO... Kathy Neacise was crowned Logtown School's final homecoming queen at ceremonies preceding a football game with Picayune. Rodney Wilkerson was king for the event.

25 YEARS AGO... The notice that must be given in order to circulate a petition for the recall of public officers, was filed with Mayor Warren Carver, requesting the recall of J. Cyril Glover, commissioner of finance and Sylvan J. Ladner, Jr., commissioner of Public utilities of the city of Bay St. Louis. The petition for the recall is to be presented ten days after publication of notice, which is in this issue of the Echo.

50 YEARS AGO... Robert L. Genin, R. C. Engman and C. B. Fisher have secured from the Hancock County Board of Supervisors a franchise for the building of a bridge connecting Bay St. Louis with Shell Beach, to be known in the future as Pine Hills, where building operations are in process for a million-dollar hotel.

A Past To Honor—

A Future To Mold

New food stamp regulations discussed

New food stamp regulations which will be effective December 1 were discussed by Welfare Department officials at a workshop in Jackson, October 29-November 1.

Several areas of the eligibility requirements for food stamps have changed making the program lighter and more complicated according to Welfare Commissioner Max M. Cole.

"One area of great interest to the general public is the change in the work registration requirements," Commissioner Cole commented. "Up until now, persons who applied for food stamps were required to register for work with the State Employment Service and were required to take a job if it came along. There was no stipulation as to how long they had to work at that job.

"Now, under the new regulations, the registrant must remain at a job that has been located for him until the job no longer meets the requirements for suitable employment set by the U. S. Department of Agriculture. This will encourage the food stamp recipient to continue working."

Another aspect of the new regulations concerns labor strikes. In the past a striker was given the same consideration as any other applicant - that is, if they met the eligibility requirements, they could qualify for food stamps. After December 1, a household will be ineligible for food stamps if a member of that household is participating in a strike declared illegal by the courts.

Some of the advantages to clients of the new regulations include allowing recipients over 60 and their spouses to purchase meals at congregate dining areas.

In many instances, the determination of eligibility for the food stamp program may require more time because of the new regulations.

"We are pleased the food stamp program will have more restrictions while at the same time, there will be more flexibility in the program," Commissioner Cole stated.

programs under one roof. HEW's internal welfare reform measures would likely be applied to the combined program.

Dwight said HEW's latest welfare reform regulation is one which requires that those receiving welfare funds be required to search for jobs and not merely register for job training as a condition for receiving the payments.

The new regulations, which should be in effect by January, will affect about 1.2 million people, who are receiving payments under the Aid to Families with Dependent Children (AFDC), said Dwight.

Those who will be exempt include women with children under age 6, invalids, and those who are in school full time.

Currently, welfare recipients have to only register in the welfare office for the Work Incentive program (WIN). Under the new regulations, they will have to register for the program at local employment offices.

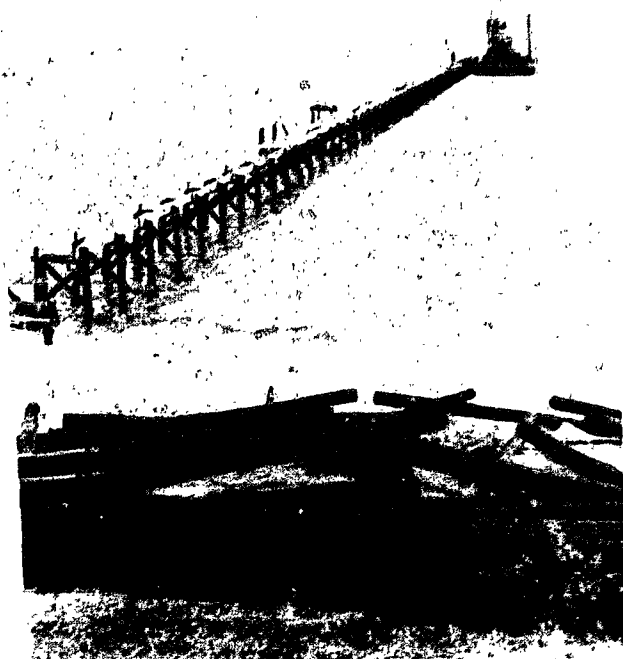

"This will expose them to the job market when they apply for welfare," Dwight said.

Even with the current economic situation, Dwight said, he was anticipating "that more people will go directly to jobs and will never have to go on welfare," he said.

Under the new regulations states will also have the option of setting up extensive manpower training programs.

WIN, which was begun in 1968, is 90 per cent federally funded and costs more than $350 million a year to run.

In the last two years, a third of a million welfare recipients have been placed into jobs.

Lusk appointed MAS attorney

A Jackson attorney has been appointed legal counsel for the Mississippi Association of Supervisors.

Sam N. Alford of McComb, president, MAS, recently announced the selection of Marshall Lusk, Jr., to advise the association in legal matters. He said Lusk will also coordinate his organization's newly created continuing education program.

In announcing Lusk's appointment, Alford said, "Our association is pleased with this development in our efforts to provide better services to member supervisors and their constituents."

He continued, "The association and the taxpayers will benefit greatly from having an attorney to advise our membership and coordinate our educational programs."

Lusk is a 1966 graduate of the Memphis State University's School of Law. He is also a graduate of Mississippi

Gold, Silver Bull Sale Slated for November 14

Jackson - This year 115 performance tested bulls have been consigned by 30 purebred breeders to the 6th Annual Gold and Silver Seal Bull Sale. The sale will be held at the State Fairgrounds on November 11.

Mississippi's Gold and Silver Bull program is of interest to all cattlemen. One of its objectives is to identify better than average purebred bulls. This is accomplished through performance testing.

"We've spearheaded this drive for production testing, and it looks like its going to pay off. No serious purebred breeder of beef cattle would dream of attempting to breed high performance cattle without this tool," observed W. M. Swoope, livestock specialist for the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. "Today performance testing is where the action is."

The program and sale are sponsored by the Mississippi Beef Cattle Improvement Association (MBCIA) in cooperation with the Mississippi Cooperative Extension Service. It is an outgrowth of the performance testing program in the state. According to the livestock specialist this program is doing just what it was intended to do - encouraging breeders to keep production records.

Welfare reform program readied

By MARGUERITE SULLIVAN
Copley News Service

WASHINGTON — If federal welfare chiefs have their way, President Ford will sit down with them this fall to draw up a welfare reform package to send to Congress.

It has been a long time coming. Welfare experts at the Department of Health, Education and Welfare (HEW) have been working on welfare reform literally for months.

First it was last fall, then January, then this summer, that a new program was scheduled to be approved by the White House and sent up to Capitol Hill.

Now with a new president, HEW's welfare chiefs are scrambling to rewrite reform options they hope to present this year to the new administration.

A plan could then be sent by Mr. Ford next year to Capitol Hill at the start of a new Congress.

But in the meantime, says James S. Dwight Jr., administrator of HEW's social and rehabilitation service, there is a "quiet revolution" going on in welfare. This revolution will likely be included as one of the options HEW officials will present to Mr. Ford.

What it amounts to is HEW's own reform of the welfare system. Within its legal jurisdiction, HEW, for almost two years, has been tightening up welfare eligibility while attempting to increase grants to the truly needy. It has been giving states more control over their welfare programs, said Dwight in an interview.

This is in direct conflict over how welfare was run in the first Nixon administration. Then HEW wanted to centralize the program, and the administration unsuccessfully introduced its family assistance plan.

That would have been a federal program of welfare with a minimum annual income attached. The plan died in the 92nd Congress because of growing congressional disenchantment with the concept and no major administration effort to push for the proposal after it was introduced.

Dwight, who formerly was California's chief deputy director of finance until 1972, said the family assistance plan won't be one of the welfare options from which Mr. Ford will have to choose.

More likely it could center around two concepts:

A negative income tax plan, which would be run by the Internal Revenue Service.

A comprehensive reform, which might lump the Agriculture Department's food stamp program, the Department of Housing and Urban Development's housing subsidy program and other poverty

Kitchen Good Place To Begin Energy Conservation

MISSISSIPPI STATE — Local, state and national leaders are urging Americans to voluntarily reduce the amount of electricity and gas they use in their homes. There are many simple things you can do to save both money and energy in your kitchen.

Mrs. Ina G. Kimbrough, food-nutrition specialist for the Cooperative Extension Service, suggests using your electric or gas range more efficiently. The six-inch surface unit on an electric range consumes about 1,400 watts of its highest heat, while an eight-inch unit will consume 2,600 watts at the same heat. Your oven may use as much as 6,000 watts.

A large burner on a gas range may consume up to 12,000 BTU's per hour, the standard size up to 9,000 BTU's and the simmer about 1,200 BTU's. A gas range oven uses from 21,000 to 24,000 BTU's per hour. "When you plan to cook several dishes at one time, the oven is more efficient than surface units. Plan menus with foods that cook at the same temperatures," she advised. "You can cook some foods with slightly different cooking temperatures at one temperature—variations of 25 degrees or less still produce good results. By planning ahead, you can bake vegetables, main dish, bread, dessert and something for the next day all at the same time."

When the oven is on, avoid peeking. You lose up to 20 per cent of the oven heat each time you open the door. Leave the oven door open no longer than is absolutely necessary.

Turn off the oven just before the food (a roast, for instance) has finished cooking. The food will continue to cook with the heat retained in the oven and you'll save energy.

Cook meat at moderate temperatures (300 to 325 degrees) to reduce shrinkage and retain meat juices and flavor.

Mrs. Kimbrough also suggested using your small electric appliances such as broiler-ovens and skillets when possible. An oven consumes six to seven times more energy than the smaller appliances.

"Get the cooperation of family members in your energy conservation plan. Encourage less frequent opening of the refrigerator. By planning ahead, several items can be taken from the refrigerator at one time," the specialist said. "The less time the door is open, the less energy is used."

Drugs and your health

by John F. Russell, M.D.

HEROIN...the very word conjures up pictures of junkies nodding out in alleys, wild-eyed addicts who would steal, rape, and even kill to get a "fix," needle freaks who are somehow even more disgraceful than the drunk lying in the gutter. Society pictures the heroin addict as the lowest form of life, lower even than the animals.

Yet, it was not always so. The very name itself, "HEROIN," attests to that. When first synthesized, the substance diacetyl morphine was thought to be the answer to a problem...the cure for "soldier's disease" or morphine addiction. Thus it was an heroic substance, a "heroine."

The story is an old one, dating back over 6,000 years when the opium poppy was referred to as the "Joy Plant" on an ancient Sumerian tablet. They had found, even then, that when eaten, the dried juice of the opium poppy would ease pain and suffering. For over 6,000 years, raw opium has been the basis for medicines of all kinds. Except for the past 150 years, it was the only agent physicians could use and obtain sure results. Besides relieving pain and suffering, it corrected dysentery and diarrhea, it induced sleep and was a most effective tranquilizer for ancient problems. So, it has not always been thought of as a "killer of souls." Parallel with its medical use, however, was the use of opium as a deliverer of pleasure, and it was used extensively for "recreation" purposes.

It wasn't until the early 1800's that morphine was isolated from opium and was found to be ten times as potent. By 1832 codeine was isolated from opium and the medical world had found two agents, so effective, that even today they are of prime importance in medicine.

In the 1850's, the perfection of the hypodermic syringe was at once a great boon to medicine. It meant that it was possible to get medication quickly into the blood stream for rapid relief from pain and suffering instead of the slower route of eating opium or morphine and waiting for absorption from the gastrointestinal tract.

Unfortunately, a false notion led to a great increase in addiction. It was felt that by injecting morphine directly into the blood instead of going through the stomach, it would be safe and not addicting. As a result, it was given widely during the Civil War for pain and dysentery...to such an extent that a great percentage of returning veterans were addicted to morphine. So much so that it was called "soldier's disease."

Then in 1898 diacetyl morphine was isolated, named heroin, and heralded as a NON-addicting substitute for morphine and codeine...the perfect drug; more potent by far and less harmful. It was widely used to treat morphine addicts. In our fear of drug abuse today, we don't realize that addiction was far worse

In the early 1900's when one out of every 400 Americans was addicted to narcotics and there was no control at all over drugs at that time. Most of those addicted weren't even aware of the fact. They just kept taking their opium elixirs, drinking coca-colas with cocaine, and injecting morphine for pain. But that is another story in itself. Suffice it to say that we now have isolated methadone, and it is the new hope for taking care of heroin addicts.

HISTORY REPEATS ITSELF!

Superport oil terminal

Could be shot in arm for state

Location of a superport oil terminal off the Mississippi-Alabama Gulf Coast will be an economic shot in the arm for the entire state, not just for the Coast counties, according to Jeff East, director of the state's Superport Coordinating Office.

East pointed out that more revenue will be generated by the subsidiary industries that will locate throughout the state than by the actual operation of the port itself.

Industries such as refineries, petrochemical plants and service industries prefer to locate near sources of crude oil, said East, so construction of a superport in or near this state would mean a drastic increase in industry and revenue for Mississippi.

"Already," said East, "we've talked to several companies who have expressed interest in investing here. But they won't invest here if we don't have a superport."

East cited figures from an Econometric Model of the state prepared for the Mississippi Research and Development Center by the Wharton School of Finance at the University of Pennsylvania which say the gross state product of the state would be increased over $200 million by 1980 with the establishment of a single 200,000 barrel a day refinery.

The model predicts that by 1980, location of a single 200,000 barrel a day refinery would increase total employment by 10,800, personal income by $196.1 million, retail sales by $143.3 million, and sales tax revenues by $7.2 million.

"In addition to the jobs actually made available at refineries and petrochemical plants," said East, "just think of the new jobs for teachers to teach the workers' children, farmers to raise food for the workers, contractors to build houses for the workers—all the things that people need when new jobs get established in an area."

Christmas Club checks are out

Hancock Bank Christmas Club members in Bay St. Louis will soon receive checks for $164,500, and in Pass Christian for $147,000.

According to Bob Hamilton, vice president and manager of the Bay St. Louis bank, and Warren Alford, V-P manager of the Pass bank, Christmas Club checks were put in the mail Wednesday afternoon for delivery to savers by the weekend. This total represents an increase of more than $21,000 over last year's Christmas Club savings in Bay St. Louis and $20,000 in the Pass.

Leo W. Seal Jr., president of Hancock Bank, said that more than $1,100,000 overall will be sent to Hancock Bank club members along the Coast.

March of Dimes

Teens to meet in Jackson for campaign action

Mississippi teens will swing into action on behalf of birth-defect victims November 15 in a statewide gathering, in Jackson, to be conducted by the Mississippi office of The National Foundation-March of Dimes.

The purpose of the meeting is to make plans for the annual March of Dimes in Mississippi, held each January, to raise funds for the year 'round program of The National Foundation to lessen birth defects tolls.

Approximately 125 young people—Teen Action Program and College Action Program volunteers—are expected to gather at the Coliseum Ramada Inn, according to John Bergin of the state office, will be five-year-old Dunbar McCurley, the state's March of Dimes poster child this year, and the son of Dr. and Mrs. C. D. McCurley, Jr., of Woodville.

Acting as host and master of ceremonies for the event will be David Sadka, who is the state CAP co-chairman for the 1975 campaign. Sadka, of Meridian, is a freshman at Millsaps College.

Addressing the TAP and CAP volunteers will be Dr. John Rawson, assistance professor of pediatrics and director of the Newborn Center at the University of Mississippi Medical Center in Jackson, and Arnetta Swan, director of the medical center's nurse-midwifery service.

A guest of honor at the banquet November 15 at noon

Miss Rene Crowe, a Kosciusko High School senior and already a two-year veteran of March of Dimes leadership at the age of 16, is Teen Action Program chairman for south Mississippi and will preside at some of the sessions.

An inspirational address will be presented by The Reverend Clifford Herd, pastor of Christ Lutheran Church in Jackson, following the noon banquet session, and the meeting will adjourn following his address.

Volunteers from the various counties will meet poster-child Dunbar McCurley for photographs following the adjournment.

A reception and dinner for the young volunteers is scheduled for the evening of November 14, Bergin said.

Legislators to hold public meeting

A general meeting with the public to answer legislative questions has been announced jointly by the offices of State Representative Earl "Buck" Ladner and State Senator Martin Smith.

The meeting will be held 10 a.m. Saturday Nov. 16 at Scafield's Wheel Inn Restaurant on U.S. Hwy 90 in Bay St. Louis.

Ladner said that the meeting was being scheduled to hear any comments and suggestions the general public might have before the 1975 regular session of the Mississippi Legislature convenes in January.

TRAVEL IN BAJA

New highway and hotels are attracting more tourists

By RICK ORLOV
Copley News Service

LA PAZ, Baja California, Mexico—A visit to the peninsula which makes up Baja California is a unique experience.

Baja could never be called a pretty country. It is a vast land—f forbidding and desolate.

It is sparsely populated with only about a million persons living in an area larger than Italy.

For the tourist it does not have the large luxurious resorts of Mexico City or Acapulco. The only "real" tourist spots are at the southern tip around La Paz.

Most who visit Baja do so for the attractions it holds to campers and fishermen.

Yet, recently, more and more persons are learning about Baja and are coming to visit—especially with the completion of the transpeninsular highway.

The highway, known either as Carretera Numero Uno or the Benito Juarez Highway, runs more than 1,000 miles from Tijuana to Cabo San Lucas.

It was completed in December, 1973, and opened up Baja to those who did not own the four-wheel-drive vehicle which was needed to cross the country.

And, to make it even easier for tourists, the Mexican national government has undertaken an ambitious effort to provide accommodations along the way.

Gasoline stations are interspersed about every 100 miles along the highway. In only one spot a person has to drive about 200 miles before being able to refuel.

In addition, a chain of hotels has been constructed along the highway by the government's Nacional Hotelera.

Five hotels from Ensenada to San Ignacio have been opened and several others are being planned.

La Pinta Hotel in Ensenada is the largest of the chain in Baja and the only one which is not new. It was purchased by Nacional Hotelera and refurbished.

All the other hotels—in San Quintin, Guerrero Negro, Santa Ines and San Ignacio—are new and look practically identical.

The largest of the four is in San Quintin, where there are 60 rooms. It opened in July and, as of mid-August, had not yet opened several planned shops in the hotel.

In each of the other hotels there are between 28 and 30 rooms.

The El Presidente Hotel in

Guerrero Negro is attempting to make somewhat of a comeback following a rash of bad publicity after it first opened.

A government spokesman explained officials rushed to open the hotel before all cooking equipment was installed and all cooking was done on outdoor-type stoves. Also, work was still proceeding on the hotel when it was visited by a group of travel writers, who criticized the facilities.

Rates at all the hotels range from $22 to $28 a night.

Trailer parks are adjacent to each hotel to accommodate campers, and airplane landing strips are near each facility for private pilots.

In addition, the hotel chain has plans to start its own charter airline operation in the United States to bring visitors to the hotels.

A 17-passenger Beechcraft 90 will be used for the charter operation, which will be called El Presidente to tie in with the name of most of the hotels in the chain.

Additional airplanes will be added as needed.

Cost of the charter is expected to be comparable to commercial airlines.

However, costs are expected to vary depending on whether a package tour is available and the number of persons on a flight.

LDS program described

Spencer W. Kimball, President and Prophet of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter-day Saints, along with the First Presidency of the Church has called upon Mormons throughout the world to cooperate in an extensive "cleanup and beautification" campaign.

Following the request of The First Presidency, James Walden of the Waveland Branch asked local members to heed the counsel of the Prophet and implement the program as part of the nation's upcoming Bicentennial observance.

Walden said that Priesthood quorums, Young Adult and other Church groups will organize themselves to assist the elderly, the fatherless, and the needy in improving the appearance of their homes and surroundings, and in properly maintaining them.

In an open letter to all members of the Church, the First Presidency said:

"We earnestly call upon members of the Church everywhere to clean up and beautify their homes, surroundings, farms, and places of business.

"Our homes and buildings are the showcase of what we believe. They should be attractive and give every indication of cleanliness, orderliness, and self-esteem.

"Let all things be done in order; the Lord has counseled us. (Doctrine and Covenants 58:55) His words spoken in the Sermon on the Mount have important meaning today:

"Let your light so shine before men, that they may see your good works; and glorify your Father which is in heaven." (Matthew 5:16).

"We urge that this improvement begin immediately and that procedures be established for maintaining our homes, buildings, and surroundings so that they always bespeak the high standards of the Church which we embrace."

The letter is signed by President Spencer W. Kimball, and his counselors, President N. Eldon Tanner, and President Marion G. Romney.

Bob Bennett
of
Ben Bro, Inc.

Ben-Bro Inc., a major furniture company located in Long Beach, is entering the final week of its anniversary sale. Now thru Sat., Nov. 16 prices are marked down 10 to 35 percent on Ben-Bro's entire stock.

Bob Bennett, the company president, said that one factor which has contributed to Ben-Bro's success is his policy of stocking name brand furniture in high grade covers. This is very important to the consumers. For example, a Bassett Sofa in H grade fabric would sell for about $100 more than a base cover would in the same style. This is why value is more important than price.

Another factor which allows Ben-Bro Inc. to sell quality name brand furniture for less in addition to low overhead, is its policy of buying in quantity and taking all discounts. This often lowers the retail price by as much as 20 percent over items purchased singly or special ordered. Freight alone can add 10 to 20 percent on singly ordered items.

This is why Ben-Bro Inc. does have lower prices and higher quality name brand home furnishings. Value, service and warranty are important. So shop for value not price alone. Shop. Then come in at Ben-Bro Inc., 308 Jeff Davis Ave., Long Beach or call 863-5391 today.

Sublime to the ridiculous

In costume and character for a richly varied program of two dramatic scenes and a short play are Coast Episcopal High students Regina Casteln as St. Joan, Lynn Cooper in "The Leader" and Leslie Perry as Katherine in "Taming of the Shrew". Performances are open to the public and scheduled for 7:30 p.m. tomorrow night and a dinner theatre Saturday night at 7, at the school on Esplanade, in Pass Christian.

Coast Episcopal High

A rich menu: Shakespeare, Shaw and Ionescu

Power is the theme and comedy the style of the three acts the Drama class of Coast Episcopal High School will present Friday at 7:30 p.m. and at a dinner theatre performance Saturday evening at the school on Esplanade, in Pass Christian.

Scenes from Shakespeare's "Taming of the Shrew", "St. Joan" by G. B. Shaw, and a one-act play, "The Leader" by Georges Ionescu, illustrate three faces of power - power in the family, authoritarian power and political power.

The comedy modes range from the broad puns of Elizabethan comedy to the ironic and aspen Shavian view of man's motives in St. Joan to political satire as seen in Rumanian playwright Ionescu's theatre of the absurd.

In leading roles in the productions are Leslie Perry, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Alton Perry of Long Beach; Lynn Cooper, daughter of Mr.

and Mrs. A. W. Cooper, Pass Christian; and Regina Casteln, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Robert Casteln of Pass Christian.

The plays are under the direction of Mrs. Geoffrey Keatinge, English and drama teacher, and Mr. Edward Craig. Members of the Drama class have earned money they used to build a module stage and are designing and making their own costumes as well as taking part in the plays.

Senior class members and their mothers are planning and serving the dinner which will precede Saturday's program. Dinner will be served at 7 o'clock.

The dinner theatre seating will be limited to 100 persons but seating for the Friday evening performance is unlimited. Prices for Friday are $1.25 for adults and $1 for students.

Dinner theatre prices are $3.50 for adults and $2 for children under 12. Tickets and reservations for Saturday are available by calling the school office.

Aerobic dancers keep in shape

SAN DIEGO, Calif. — Where do you learn to pony left and pony right, Susie Q, bow and arrow, rock in threes and sneak run?

At an aerobic dance class, that's where.

"Aerobic dance takes the place of jogging and traditional exercises women do to keep in shape," explains Jacki Sorenson of Los Angeles, a member of the clinic staff of the President's Council on Physical Fitness and development of aerobic dance for physical conditioning.

"It really is a rhythmic sport," she adds. "It is fun, it is a game. And the name of the game is to stay in there moving for 30 minutes or more."

The pace at which dancers move depends upon their physical conditions. From time to time during each class, movement is brought to a very slow walk while participants check their pulse rates.

"The longer you keep moving and the more your heart and lungs work, the more oxygen is utilized by your body. That's where 'aerobic' comes in."

"Aerobic means 'with oxygen,'" Mrs. Sorenson said. "Oxygen is the basic nutrient of the body." Kim Fitzgerald said. "Oxygen is needed for improved metabolism and circulation, to relieve mental and physical fatigue, ease tensions and anxiety."

Fitzgerald has been teaching a pilot program in aerobic dance at the downtown YMCA here. Mrs. Sorenson recently visited San Diego at Fitzgerald's request.

"Our classes have been a great success and there is a demand for more, but, we have no teachers," Fitzgerald said.

"I have gotten together a group potential to be good teachers and Jacki came here to help train them."

Mrs. Sorenson not only developed the program, she has choreographed some 400 dances to keep it interesting and fun.

"The dances are simple and choreographed with the non-dancer in mind," she said. "They also are planned for women in all degrees of fitness, with all levels of skill and at various ages."

"The simple steps can be put to walking, running, jogging, hopping or skipping rhythms. The pace can be personalized."

To sustain interest, programs are changed every 12 weeks.

"With new music, new routines, we are able to keep fun and motivation high," Mrs. Sorenson said. "If the women don't have fun, they are not going to stick with it."

"We use Charleston, cha-cha, folk, rock and even waltz tempos."

The future teachers have all been involved in physical fitness programs. At a recent instruction session, they went through their class routines like dancers in rehearsal. Arm movements were as important as footwork.

There was a touch of June Taylor choreography in some of their formations. They didn't seem ready to compete with the Rockettes, but they could have passed as dancers in early rehearsals for a television production number.

"Almost every woman would love to be a chorus girl at least once," Mrs. Sorenson said. "But, dancing talent is not necessary. You don't have to have rhythm or be well-coordinated."

Bay Little Theatre comedies open tonight

TO OPEN, PRY COVER - are instructions easier said than done, as Ethel and Albert Arbuckle discover in the comedy opening tonight at Bay Little Theatre. Stars of the first act are Ted Stechmann, Karen Smith and Al Carlson, the latter two playing the lead roles.

WHAT'S THAT TUNE? - John and Alice Holmes, as the principals in the second act, gleefully sing the tune that Vic Frankiewicz has been humming outside the window.

Three one-act comedies will close the season for the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre on November 14, 15 and 16. These are the Ethel and Albert comedies of radio fame, featuring the domestic trials of Ethel and Albert Arbuckle.

The first, "To Open, Pry Cover," will feature Karen Smith as Ethel, Al Carlson as Albert and Ted Stechmann as the deliveryman. The second play, "What's That Tune?" has Alice Holmes playing Ethel and John Holmes as Albert. Vic Frankiewicz plays Vergil Bemiss, the man who whistles. Play three brings Francis Frankiewicz as the Ethel role, Ed Craig as Albert and Mark Horne as Fred.

Each play, while using the Arbuckles as continuity, is a complete unit. Mary Carter, director, and Mike Cuevas, producer promise a delightful evening at the Bay St. Louis Little Theatre on Boardman Avenue. Curtain time is 8 p.m. Tickets for the performance may be purchased at the door.

THE CHRISTMAS PRESENT - is not what Albert and Ethel, played by Ed Craig and Frances Frankiewicz, expected in the third act. Bearer of the bizarre gift is Mark Horne.

New Orleans Symphony Orchestra

A musical trip is in store for Coast students Thursday

That's a bassoon?

Students get a closer look at the instruments from the New Orleans Symphony's principal bassoonist Crawford Best, left, and violinist John Branch. Werner Torkanowsky will conduct the orchestra in a special student concert at 1:30 p.m. Nov. 21 in Bay Junior High School, presented by the Bay-Waveland Altrusa Club.

A musical trip around Europe is in store for Gulf Coast students when the New Orleans Symphony Orchestra comes to town for a special matinee at Bay Junior High November 21 at 1:30 p.m.

Presented by the Altrusa Club, the orchestra under conductor Werner Torkanowsky will present selections written by famous composers born in Germany, Italy, Russia, France, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia. Of course, a rousing "Star Spangled Banner" will start the concert off.

Students in all schools are invited and they purchase their admissions through their schools. Parents who want to attend may contact Jeanette Monti at 467-5431, or Mrs. Dorothy Overal at 435-3656.

The program is as follows: WAGNER (Germany): Prelude to "Die Meistersinger"

The Prelude to "Die Meistersinger" was written in 1862. It is based on the story of the 16th century guild of mastersingers, headed by a cobbler-poet named Hans Sachs. It is considered to be one of the most remarkable curtain-raiser ever written.

VERDI (Italy): Overture to "La Forza del Destino" (The Power of Destiny)

Verdi is one of the most famous composers of opera. This overture, also a "curtain-raiser," was written in 1862, the same year as the Prelude to "Die Meistersinger."

STRAVINSKY (Russia): Infernal Dance from "The Firebird Suite"

Stravinsky wrote this music for a ballet and it was first performed in 1910. The story is about a folk hero named Ivan, the Firebird, and a fearsome wizard named Katschell who has magic powers. This is Katschell's dance.

Cars are being made better now

You hear people complain things aren't made as well as they used to be, but the Automotive Information Council says cars are being made better. In 1954 the manufacturers recommended their cars be brought to the service shop 49 times during the first 50,000 miles to make a total of 671 adjustments and inspections.

The 1974 models needed only eight trips back for service for a total of only 106 adjustments and inspections.

BERLIOZ (France): Royal Hunt and Storm from "The Trojans"

Berlioz called this section of the opera "The Trojans" a "descriptive symphony." He intended it to tell about the moment when Dido and Aeneas, two of the characters in the opera, are driven into a cave by a storm.

LIGETI (Hungary): Lontano

Ligeti is a contemporary Hungarian born composer who now lives in Vienna. He has become very well known because he wrote a piece called "Atmospheres" which was used in the movie "2001: A Space Odyssey." "Lontano" in Italian means "far, remote, distant."

DVORAK (Czechoslovakia): Slavonic Dance

Dvorak is a Czechoslovakian composer who used folk music in much of the music he wrote. His "Slavonic Dances" use this folk music and are very popular. Dvorak first wrote these dances to be played by two pianos. He later re-wrote them for full orchestra.

Deep discussion

New Orleans Symphony concertmaster and assistant conductor Carter Nice talks to a young student before a concert. Werner Torkanowsky, music director and conductor of the New Orleans Symphony will lead the 80 member ensemble in a special student concert next Thursday at Bay Junior High, under the auspices of Bay-Waveland Altrusa Club. Information about the concert is available by calling Ms. Jeanette Monti at 467-5431, or Mrs. Dorothy Overal, 435-3656.

Virginia Field prefers the modern Hollywood

By NANCY ANDERSON
Copley News Service

HOLLYWOOD — "Every-one's so nostalgic about the old days in Hollywood," Virginia Field said with a smile, "but I was working in Hollywood in the old days, and it wasn't all peaches and cream."

Miss Field, who made approximately 45 pictures during the halcyon days of the movie industry and was under contract to two major studios, Twentieth Century-Fox and Paramount, retired to Palm Desert in 1957 with her husband, actor Willard Parker, and would be there yet enjoying the relatively unpolluted sunshine had Parker not suffered a stroke.

"We moved to the desert," she explains, "because we'd bought a motel down there with the thought it would be a nice place to spend vacations and entertain friends."

"We expected a manager to run it, but you know how those things go."

"So Willard and I moved to the desert ourselves, and he got into real estate."

"But last year he had a stroke, so we've moved back into the Los Angeles area where I'd like to begin working again."

"I'm not going to go without a meal if I don't get a job, but I would like to make pictures."

"Actually there's a lot to be said for conditions in Hollywood now as opposed to those when I first came here."

Miss Field, daughter of a British judge, arrived in the film city in the 1930s when she was 15 to begin her American movie career.

She was chaperoned by an aunt who was soon joined by an English nanny dispatched by Virginia's parents.

"Nanny's still with me," Miss Field says. "She not only took care of me, she took care of my daughter. When I left home just now she was playing cards with my husband's nurse."

"My mother was on the stage," she continues, explaining her own leaning toward the theater. "In fact, my father often said that he gave his greatest gift to the English stage when he got my mother off of it."

"When I came here, there was no Actor's Guild, so we worked our tails off."

"I never had a Saturday night or a Sunday off."

"We finished 'Lloyds of London' at 3 o'clock on a Sunday afternoon. We stopped work every four hours because Tyrone (Power) had to shave or his beard would show, but otherwise we worked right through the weekend to get the picture finished."

"I got Monday off, but on Tuesday morning I had to be at the Fox studio on Western to begin a picture called 'Lancer Spy.' I had such a cold they finally put a nurse on the set."

"On Friday night I passed out, and, when I came to, it was the following Wednesday, and I was in an iron lung."

"Overwork had almost killed me."

In 1904 the Russian empire of Czar Nicholas II seemed to be one of the strongest nations on earth. Little Japan was bustling with economic energy but it didn't appear to have much of an army or a navy.

In the years 1904 and 1905, however, Tokyo warlords showed that their tightly trained army and combat-efficient navy made for a potent force and for the emergence of Japan as a military nation to be reckoned with in years to come. They literally swept Russia from the Yellow Sea and their armies punished the inept Russian troops into submission.

It was a gigantic military victory, only to be diminished at the Treaty of Portsmouth promoted by U.S. President Theodore Roosevelt.

Most people know of the surprising Japanese victory in this war but few know the details as put on paper by Denis Warner and his wife, Peggy, in their fascinating new book, "The Tide at Sunrise." They pinpoint, for instance, this era as the beginning of Japanese hatred for the United States.

Denis Warner was a World War II Australian soldier fighting in Africa until he returned home to become a Pacific war correspondent. He always has been a delightful man and one of boundless energy. He rode ashore with one of my Army unit's amphibian tanks in the first wave in the battle of Saipan, and for 19 days before that landing he was an agile man at all-night cribbage as our landing ship tank lumbered from Honolulu to the launching area opposite Saipan's Yellow Beach 1.

His manner at that time gave no hint that he might be willing to spend the years of research, travel to nine countries and other chores required to producing a book of the high quality apparent instantly in this history of the Russo-Japanese war.

He did do the research, however, including close study of the most detailed Japanese government documents that record the plotting, the maneuvers and the prosecution of the war both on land and at sea. This war was the biggest and most modern in history up to that time. It was the first war ever fought completely with modern weapons, including machine guns, battleships, even electrified barbed wire.

This war should have taught Western nations, particularly the United States, that the Japanese were on the move, as the Warners detail the pre-attack "tourist" visits to Port Arthur by Japanese military men in civilian clothes.

There even is a "Pearl Harbor" — the opening surprise attack by the Japanese on a Sunday in the same pattern as the one that opened World War II for America in Honolulu 37 years later.

Both Denis and Peggy

Warner have been experts on Asia in a true sense for many years. They live a vigorous life in Victoria, Australia, when not news hunting in other parts of the world. And,

Chinese writing based on nature

Chinese legend has it that calligraphy, the art of Chinese writing, was invented by Ts'ang Chieh in the remote past.

He is said to have patterned his script after birds' and animals' footprints, and thus the Chinese characters are said to be composed of the beauty of nature.

NEWS OF Travel

JOIN A SCIENTIFIC SEMINAR AND SEE THE USSR

It may sound remote, but scientific meetings in the Soviet Union can affect our health and well-being, ecology and ability to live on our budget.

How? Scientists, technologists, and management executives from all over the world will attend numerous meetings and seminars in Russia this year to learn what is new in their respective fields and how to make this a better world for everyone.

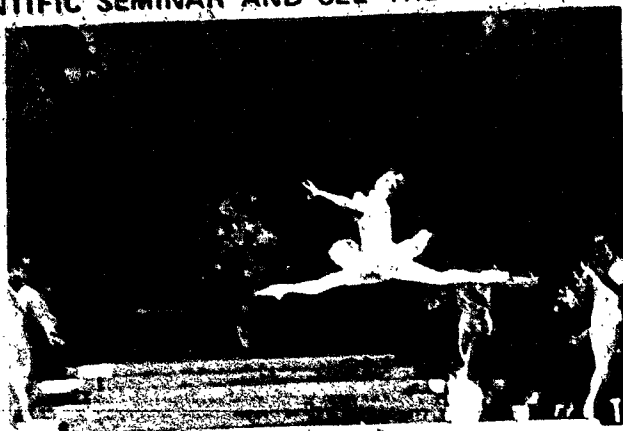

For example, in 1975, a few of the scheduled meetings in the Soviet Union include the European Astronomical Conference, International Congress of Irrigation and Drainage, General Conference of International Association of Universities, International Plant Protection Congress, International Congress of Carboniferous Stratigraphy and Geology, Astrakhan Symposium of International Breeding, International Congress of Refrigeration, General Assembly and Congress of International Council of Societies of Industrial Design and the International Conference of High Pressure, Physics and Technology.

One of the chief attractions of these meetings, aside from the knowledge to be gained, is what comes after the sessions end. Then the participants, and their families, can take escorted tours all over the Soviet Union, arranged through Intourist, USSR Company for Foreign Travel.

All the arrangements are made by Intourist so that visitors are assured accommodations wherever they go, and a guide-interpreter sees that they don't miss a thing.

What is there to see? In the Soviet Union the variety seems endless.

Moscow, where most of the meetings are held, is teeming with opera, ballet, including the famous Bolshoi, orchestra concerts, the theater, the Moscow Circus and museums. If the meeting is in winter, visitors are particularly beautiful in winter. The Kremlin towers are powdered with snow, the trees in the streets have snowy crowns, and in the city's parks skaters skim along the ice lanes and Russian troikas speed along the wide, tree-lined roads. The Moscow countryside is a paradise for skiers.

In summer there is Leningrad, one of the world's most beautiful cities. It stands in the delta of the deep Neva River on a cluster of islands linked by bridges. June in this northern city is the time of white nights when it is so light round the clock that you can read at midnight without turning on a light. Among its many attractions are the famous Hermitage, with its wonderful collections of world art, and the Russian Museum with its unique collection of Russian paintings.

The third and largest city (after Moscow and Leningrad) in territory (and eighth in population) is Novosibirsk, a gigantic industrial and scientific center with a million population situated on the river Ob in Siberia. Also in Siberia is Baikal, the world's deepest lake, only a half-hour's drive along an excellent highway from the city of Irkutsk. In the summer the sunshine is generous on the sandy beaches surrounded by pines and cedars.

The Ukraine attracts many tourists to see historical monuments and the beautiful countryside and to enjoy the hospitality of the friendly Ukrainian people. Then there's sunny Moldavia, the blossoming garden in the southwestern part of the Soviet Union. Or farther north, in the Baltic region of Estonia, Latvia and Lithuania, you can see ancient cities, castles, splendid architectural monuments, power stations and huge factories, poetical landscapes...the old and the new coexist happily here.

Whatever the climate, the scene or the history you want, you can find it in the Soviet Union, and Intourist is there to give it to you with the greatest comfort, economy and pleasure.

For further details, contact your travel agent or write to Intourist, 45 East 49th Street, New York, N.Y. 10017.

Old-time winters found family ready

What with air-conditioned homes and air-conditioned offices and stores, and air-conditioned cars to ride back and forth in, people don't pay as much attention to the weather as they used to. Sixty years ago the only air conditioning known was that furnished by Mother Nature, and she believed in variety.

Consequently, you had to be prepared for just about anything in the way of weather, and along about the first of November, you began getting ready for winter.

To begin with, you laid in a good supply of wood in the woodshed, which was usually an unheated shed-like room tacked onto the back of the house.

Quite often there was only a dirt floor and it wasn't exactly a comfortable place to spend any more time than was absolutely necessary, but it did very well as a storage place for the logs and stove lengths of wood. Also, it was a good place to chop kindling because it didn't matter how many chips and shavings you scattered around. And kind-ling you had to have every morning when you crept shivering into the kitchen to start the fire in the cookstove.

Only in the very coldest weather was the fire banked and allowed to smolder slowly all night. Even then it was far from warm in the house first thing in the morning, and Mamma usually wrapped a shawl around her shoulders over her woolen sash while she shook down the ashes and piled wood in the cookstove and base burner until she had a merry blaze crackling in each one.

Papa and the boys always filled the woodbox in the kitchen the last thing at night, but it had to be filled again during the day. And the coal scuttle had to be filled with coals and placed by the stove with the little coal shovel beside it. For coal was expensive and had to be doled out carefully, a shovelful at a time, whereas wood could mostly be had for the cutting and so could be used more freely.

Another fall job was banking cornstalks and straw around the foundation of the house. Very few cellars were heated in those days, for furnaces were mostly for rich people. Besides that, there could be a lot of airspaces between the foundation and the house itself, and sometimes when the wind blew hard it came in between the cracks with such force that it ruffled the carpets on the first floor into waves.

This made a wonderful arrangement for playing that you were in a ship on the ocean, but Mamma didn't appreciate it, and she saw to it that the foundations were properly banked in time to keep most of the wind out.

Then somebody had to take an old knife and stuff rags around all the window casings to keep the wind out, for storm windows were practically unknown. And you tacked paper over the doors and set a pile of ashes by the back door against the first snowfall, and so, having made everything snug, everyone settled down to enjoy the winter.

It wasn't much fun playing outside for very long at a time, so sometimes you would sit by the window and look out instead. It was a desolate, but somehow fascinating scene. A gray, gray day, gray, gray skies with gray clouds scudding overhead—even the air looked gray.

Mrs. Sturtevant honored for 50 year membership

Mrs. Robert S. Sturtevant of Pass Christian was honored Saturday when Mrs. Max L. Pharr, state DAR regent of Jackson, presented her with the 50 year oval-medallion membership pin, a gift from Mrs. Sturtevant's home chapter, the Boston Tea Party, with headquarters in Arlington, Massachusetts.

Assisting with the celebration were Meses. Robert Bird, Gulf Coast chapter regent; Roy J. Jones, past regent; Mary Shourds of Gulfport; and Mrs. Bruce Nicholson, chairman of District III of Jackson.

The Bicentennial theme was the motif for service with serving plates imprinted with Independence Hall, and cake decorated with appropriate motif. Camellias and greenery revered by ladies of the Deep South were placed throughout the rooms. As a gesture of appreciation Mrs. Sturtevant gave Mrs. Bird a terrarium and pinned a prized lavender orchid on Mrs. Pharr's costume.

Mrs. Sturtevant plans to retain her membership in the Massachusetts chapter and to work with the Coast Chapter as an associate member.

Mrs. Seuzeneau explained that things can be displayed but cannot be sold on Pilgrimage Day. After a club's pilgrimage date, they should pass on to the next club the brochures they have left.

cafeteria from noon til 3 p.m. Special added attractions will be a door prize, a dessert bar and a wine bar. This committee has been formed to help defray the cost of buying equipment and supplies for the science lab, home economics department, business department, and to purchase much needed audio visual equipment.

Wilmer Seymour, Bay drug education specialist will present a drug program to the students of OLA on the 12th and the 14th of November.

Ole Miss prof in national magazine

The research activities of a professor emeritus of Pharmacognosy at the University of Mississippi are featured in a recent article appearing in National Geographic magazine.

Dr. Maynard W. Quimby's drug plant research and the University's "Alice in Wonderland garden," a research garden maintained for the benefit of School of Pharmacy students, are discussed in the article "Nature's Gifts to Medicine" in the September, 1974 issue of the popular magazine.

The author is Lonnelle Aikman, who said the garden was "bright with examples of medicinal plants...I felt as if I were back in college Botany 1 sniffing such pungent herbs as tansy, fennel, and peppermint, steeped by centuries of 'wise women' to banish sore throats, colic, and other simple ailments."

She also toured storerooms filled with specimens from Dr. Quimby's latest plant hunting trip into the Nigerian bush of West Africa. These included, the writer added, 30 different species of plants used in tribal medicine.

Homemakers meet

Hancock County Extension Homemakers Council met November 7 at the Agricultural Center with Mrs. Ethel Breau, president, conducting the business session.

Special interest workshops and leader training courses for 1975 were planned.

Plans were made for the Club's annual salad luncheon December 5.

Mrs. Norine Barnes, Hancock County Extension Home Economist, conducted a leader training on making draperies.

Mrs. Breau hosted the social hour.

LAND FORMING

Nothing will give greater returns to the bottom land than land forming. Consult a public or private professional engineer before beginning land forming. Also consult a SCS District Conservationist. Land forming helps insure earlier planting, more precise application of chemicals and use of cultivation equipment. Another advantage of land forming is better water management without erosion, making it a must for anyone considering irrigation.

SOYBEAN YIELD CONTEST

Don't forget to come by the county agent's office for contest rules and entry blanks. The deadline for entering the soybean yield contest is December 10. A minimum of 50 acres of soybeans is required to enter the contest.

Awards will include a photoelectric planter monitor, combine monitor, engraved plaques and certificates. Winners will be announced at the 11th annual Soybean Day at Mississippi State University, January 27, 1975.

FORAGE TESTING

Feeding dairy cows a balanced ration helps to reach peak production. In order to balance rations, know the feeding value of your forage. Now, at the beginning of the silage and hay feeding season test your forage to determine its value.

The first five forage samples each are tested free by the Mississippi State Chemical Laboratory at Mississippi State University. Come by this office for pre-addressed sample bags and instructions.

VFW News

In observance of Veterans Day, VFW Post and Auxiliary 5931 held patriotic programs in five local schools: North Street, Delisle, Middle, St. Paul's, and Pass High. At each of the schools, the students participated in raising the flag, singing the national anthem, and reciting the pledge of allegiance.

Commander Charles Marant, along with President Patricia Necaise and Mrs. Mary Alice Schramm, presented an American flag to North Street Elementary school Principal Dr. Paul Schaeffer. Mrs. Necaise also gave a short speech on patriotism.

Mrs. Norma Bonney, Mrs. Mattie Mitchell, Mrs. Aletha Vanzandt, and Mrs. Beverly Bonney Ladner presented a flag to Delisle Elementary and participated in the ceremonies there.

Mrs. Alma Ruspoli, Mrs. Minnie Holley, and Mrs. Frona Ostreicher visited St. Paul's school where the Girl Scouts and Brownies took the honors for raising the flag.

Mrs. Inez Bourdin and Mrs. Alice Cox visited the Middle School for the Veterans Day observances.

The student bodies of North Street, Middle School, and St. Paul's assembled at Pass High where another flag ceremony was held and the students were given Americanism literature.

Following the school programs, post and auxiliary members attended a memorial service at Jones Park in Gulfport where post and auxiliary district one officers Arthur Triplett and Norma Bonney placed wreaths to commemorate the occasion. Patricia Necaise, representing 5931, also placed a wreath.

to 120 pounds per acre. Treat seed with a recommended fungicide or fungicide mixture such as Vitavax plus Thiram or Captan plus maneb at rates recommended by the manufacturer.

Fertilize grains at planting time with 20 pounds of nitrogen per acre and 40 pounds each of phosphate and potash if a soil test indicates need. Grains planted following soybeans will not need nitrogen at planting time. All plantings still need a topdressing of at least 100 pounds of nitrogen per acre in February or early March.

AFTER HARVEST JOBS

There are a number of jobs you can do this fall after harvest to save time next spring. They include:

Shred stalks and clean ditches. Deep plow, chisel or subsoil soils that need it. Subsoil diagonally to row direction for the last trip over the field this fall.

Follow the combine or cotton picker with a lime truck if lime is needed on the land. You cannot look at land and tell whether lime is needed. To make sure, have your soil tested.

If erosion is not a problem, spread phosphate and potash fertilizers now on land that needs them. Landform or at least fill pot holes on fields that need it. A good disking and land planning may be all that is needed. Apply herbicides to land that is to be plowed this fall.

Clean and store equipment properly so that it will be ready to roll next spring when you need it.

FLOOD DISASTER PROTECTION ACT

The Flood Disaster Protection Act of 1973 has changed the 1968 Act by imposing new requirements on property owners and communities. Before the passage of the 1973 Act, a community's participation in the flood insurance program was voluntary.

Under the 1973 Act, managed by the Department of Housing and Urban Development's Federal Insurance Administration, this is no longer so. Flood-prone communities are required not only to participate but also to control development in their flood hazard areas.

After February 28, no loans can be made by federally insured banks or savings and loan associations on any type property in areas identified as flood prone unless the property involved is covered by flood insurance. All identified flood-prone communities must enroll in the program by July 1, 1975, or face the loss of federal financial assistance within their flood hazard areas.

USE FROSTED GRASS

Turn the cattle into frosted grasses as soon as possible. Research shows that frosted grass loses the majority of its quality by the end of December.

The digestibility of bermudagrass or bahia grass will decrease almost 25 percent by January 1. Use all frosted summer grass by mid-December.

Educator attends meet

A top meeting of the nation's leading magazine editors and publishers in New York was also attended by only one educator—University of Mississippi assistant professor of Journalism Dr. Will Norton.

The meeting, sponsored by Folio, the magazine industry's trade publication, was limited to 75 publishers and editors, but Dr. Norton was invited to attend by Howard S. Ravis, editor of Folio. Topic of the meeting was "Buying, Selling and Merging Magazines."

Dr. Norton served as recorder of several sessions; notes made by recorders are expected to become a casebook in magazine management. Speakers at the sessions included publishers from Billboard Publications, American Homes Magazine, and other publishing companies.

Dr. Norton, who received his doctorate at the University of Iowa, joined the Ole Miss faculty last August.

BAY SENIOR HIGH French Club members take a breather on the steps of Delgado Museum in New Orleans after a lengthy tour of the gallery.

Bay High French Club tours art museum

A group of 60 students from Bay Senior High last week took a day off from school to travel to New Orleans and visit Delgado Museum in City Park.

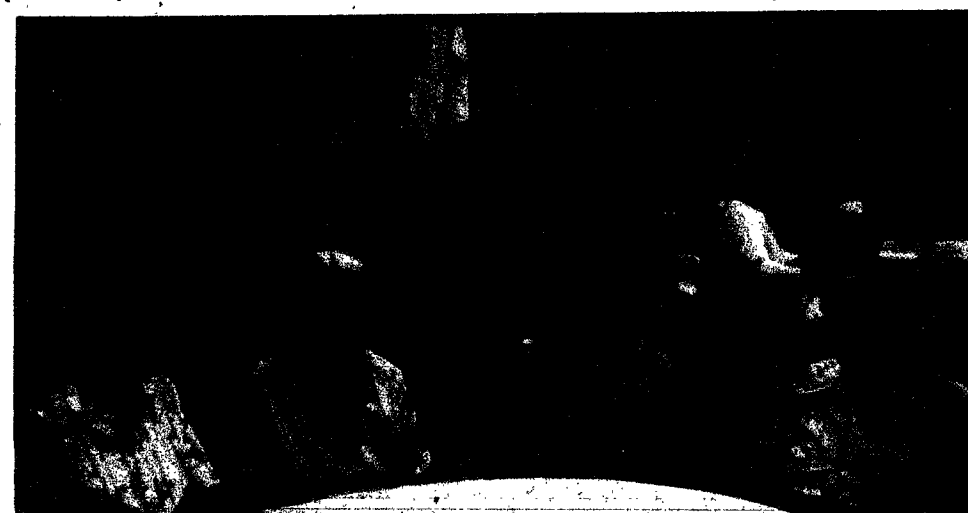

Members of the French Club had studied the works of French painters and were happy to see original paintings by Corot, Gauguin, Degas, and Utrillo. Volunteer docents provided by the staff divided the teenagers into groups of eight and conducted them on a tour of the entire museum as a means of introducing them to the art styles of many countries through many centuries. For the majority of the students it was their first such experience, and their comments were unanimously enthusiastic.

Following a picnic lunch on the grounds of the museum, the group drove to Jackson Square, where they paid brief visits to St. Louis Cathedral, the Cabildo, and the former Presbytere. The day ended with time to enjoy street flower vendors, sidewalk artists and the pigeons of the square before the return bus ride to Bay St. Louis.

Adults accompanying the students were Mrs. Rene de Montluzin, Mrs. John Landon and William Johnson.

Something new

County Extension Homemakers Clubs are traditionally for ladies only. However, Senior Citizens at the V. C. Jones Center in Bay St. Louis have flaunted tradition by forming a club with male members. Elected officers in the new group are, from left, Mrs. Marie Fazande, president; Mrs. Pearl Duvernay, vice president; Mrs. Ogil Lovell, secretary; Joseph Petta, parliamentarian; Charles Ladner (standing), treasurer.

Another first for Seniors: a co-ed Homemakers Club

Mrs. Norine Barnes, Hancock County Extension Home Economist, announced

Hancock County Day Care Center participants recently organized a new Extension

Homemakers Club, the first such club to have male as well as female members.

According to Mrs. Barnes, Charles Ladner, club treasurer, commented "Each of us has housework chores to do, so we might as well learn the best way."

Officers for the coming year are Mrs. Marie Fazande, president; Mrs. Pearl Duvernay, vice president; Mrs. Ogil Lovell, secretary; Charles Ladner, treasurer; Joseph Petta, parliamentarian.

Anyone interested in joining the club is asked to contact Mrs. Fazande at the Valena C. Jones Center.

TOPS is here

A new chapter of TOPS (Take Off Pounds Sensibly) has been formed in the Bay area. Anyone interested in losing weight is welcomed to join. TOPS will be meeting at Piccola's Dance Studio on Nicholson Ave. in Waveland every Thursday night at 7:30 p.m.

At TOPS, one will find a group of gals with at least one thing in common, excess fat that they want to lose. At TOPS they won't be alone in that trying world of dieting. Christmas isn't too far off, a TOPS spokesman reminds. A lot of us won't be at our goal weight, but we'll all be several pounds lighter. What better Christmas present to give yourself than to look better and feel better.

Anyone wishing more information or directions to Piccola's Dance Studio, may call 452-2821 after 6 p.m.

THE 'DIFFERENT' ONE---The child who is mentally retarded poses heart-breaking choices for the parents. Keep her at home? Put her in an institution? Each family must make its own decision.

SPECIAL CHILDREN

Parents of retarded face tough decision

Editor's Note: This is the first of three articles on the problems facing the families of retarded children.

By MARGARET GEKAS
Copley News Service

ELGIN, Ill. — The statistics are there.

One out of 10 Americans has a mentally retarded person in his family; an estimated 3 per cent of the population of the United States, or more than six million individuals, are believed to be mentally retarded.

Because of the rate of increase in our population, 100,000 babies born each year will probably be mentally retarded.

When a child is born into a family and is diagnosed as mentally retarded, the questions are limitless.

Facing the problem openly and honestly has been the solution for at least three families in this area.

Nancy and David Kading of suburban Streamwood have a 5-year-old daughter, Lori, who is mentally retarded. She lives at home with her parents and four brothers and sisters and attends Beverly Lake School for the Mentally Retarded in Elgin.

Tony, the son of Richard and Rosemary Conocelli, has been placed in Dixon State Hospital.

The 14-year-old daughter of Robert and Jean McGraw of Elgin lives at the Bartlett Developmental Learning Center during the week and comes home for weekends. She also lives with her family during the summer months.

The problems faced by the McGraws when they learned their daughter was mentally retarded caused Mrs. McGraw to say, "We live with the heartache every day. We don't want 'tsk-tsk' sympathy; instead we want understanding and tolerance."

Her husband takes exception to those people who say, "God gave this child to you" because you can cope. "If I knew this would happen, I wouldn't have believed," he said.

Robert McGraw is a pharmacist and soon after Karen was born, McGraw read an article concerning mental retardation caused by PKU (phenylketonuria).

McGraw had a kit at the pharmacy that could be used to diagnose whether Karen had PKU.

The results were positive and she had to be put on a strict diet. With the exception of a few foods, she was unable to eat what the rest of the family consumed. Soda crackers were considered a treat. This diet is necessary the first five years of a child's life.

The McGraws were fortunate to discover Karen's problem as early as they did. PKU, when it goes undetected, damages the brain to such an extent the human being becomes a vegetable.

Although Karen does have brain damage, the strict diet arrested total retardation.

It is now a state law that physicians must do a PKU check on newborns. Mr. and Mrs. McGraw wrote to congressmen and senators to get the law passed and a Chicago newspaper columnist told their story.

"Talk about minority groups," McGraw said, "we are a minority group."

He said he knows funds are needed to build schools for the majority of the population, but some of these funds should also be used or provide facilities for the mentally retarded and the handicapped.

Karen first went to school at Beverly Lake, although she did attend kindergarten in a public school. Her mother still works there part-time.

"After you come out from a dreadful hurt, you still want to help others," said Mrs. McGraw.

They have two older daughters; both young when Karen was born.

"We sat them down and told them Karen would need special care but that they were just as important," said Mrs. McGraw. The couple also went around to the neighbors and explained to them about Karen.

"They have been just marvelous. Our daughters had a lot to do with this."

The McGraws said the family has never been ashamed of Karen. "One of our sayings is that we don't have an afflicted child, we have an afflicted family."

The problem now is she is beginning to understand she is different from others.

She wonders why she is not able to do things other children are doing.

The future is a concern for parents with a mentally retarded child.

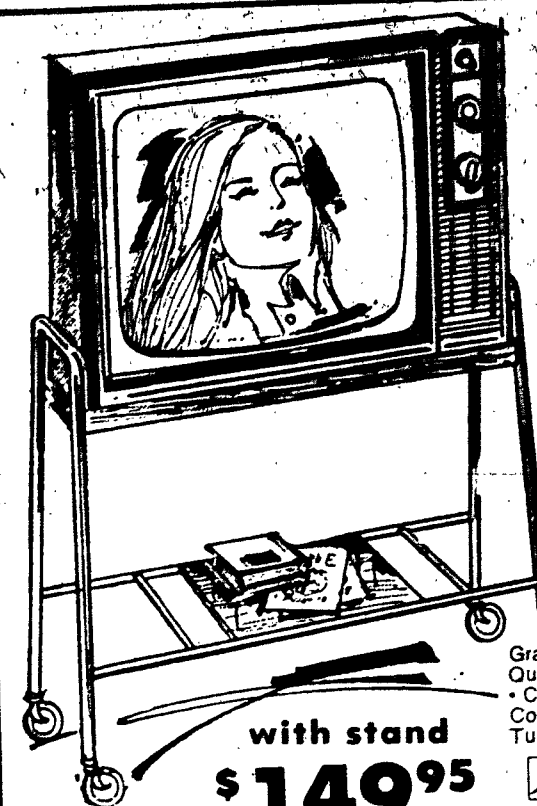

Expenses are cut because of grants from the state, but if a trust fund is built for the child specifically, the state can claim it.

Now, the McGraws hope they will have enough money to be able to put Karen in a private home should she outlive them or, "We hope in our hearts one of the other girls will take her."

Next: When parents decide on institutional care.

Ole Miss in top ten

The University of Mississippi ranks in the top 20 of 240 American educational institutions which have produced Rhodes Scholars, the nation's most outstanding students who are awarded scholarships for three years' study at Oxford University in England.

Ole Miss has had 20 Rhodes Scholars, outproducing all the Southwest Conference schools and all colleges and universities in the South, except the University of Virginia and Vanderbilt University.

Mississippi's oldest public institution of higher learning also outranks three Ivy League schools—Cornell, the University of Pennsylvania, and Columbia—according to a recent editorial in the Virginia Medical Monthly, written by editor-publisher Harry J. Warthen, M.D.

Other statistics show that Ole Miss' 20 holders of the famous scholarships, posthumously founded by Cecil John Rhodes in 1902, outnumber all except two schools in each of the Big Eight, Big Ten, and Pacific Coast Conferences. In addition, Ole Miss outproduced all state universities in the United States, except seven: Virginia, Washington, Oklahoma, Wisconsin, Michigan, Arizona and Kansas. The last two tie with Ole Miss.

Briefs

The Pass Christian Elementary School extends a cordial invitation to all parents and interested citizens to visit the library during Book Week, November 11-15. The library is open from 8 a.m. until 3 p.m.

UNIVERSITY, MISS. — The University of Mississippi's first volleyball team is preparing to host the state volleyball tournament of the Mississippi Association of Intercollegiate Athletics for Women on Nov. 15-16 at Ole Miss.

UNIVERSITY, MISS. — One of the new degree programs now being offered at the University of Mississippi, following approval of the Board of Trustees of Institutions of Higher Learning, through the School of Education is the Bachelor of Recreation Leadership.

UNIVERSITY, MISS. — Latest American College Test (ACT) class profile for college freshmen disputes the myth that Ole Miss is a "rich man's school." The figures show that 42 percent of the Ole Miss freshmen come from families who make less than $9,000 a year.

IN MEMORIAM

IN MEMORY
OF
HENRY S. CARVER SR.
DIED NOVEMBER 13, 1973

A year has passed since
Your gentle face and patient smile with sadness
we recall.
You had a kindly word for each,
And died beloved by all.
The voice is mute and stilled the heart.
That loved so well and true,
Oh, bitter was the trail to part,
From one so good as you.
You are not forgotten loved one nor will you, ever be.
As long as life and memory
last we will remember thee.
We miss you now our hearts are sore, as time goes by.
We miss you more your loving smile.
Your gentle face no one can fill your vacant place.

Hinds Eagles defeat Wildcats

POPLARVILLE — The Hinds Eagles held off a late comeback by Pearl River reserves here Saturday night to defeat the Wildcats 17-13 in junior college action.

PRC, which entered the contest with an outside shot at the South Division title, saw Hinds kill it's chances with 17 second-period points, and then stave off the Wildcat second teamers to win.

The Eagles got off to the fast start on the strength of the running of David Powell, Jack Duckworth, and Bill Loyacono. Powell and Duckworth scored the Eagles' first two TD's on runs over left tackle of 16 and 23 yards, respectively.

For the game, Powell lead Hinds ball carriers with 54 yards on 12 carries. Duckworth got 40 on 13 tries, and Loyacono contributed 38 on eight. The Eagle threesome offset a fine rushing performance by Pearl River's Larry Tyrone, who ran 20 times for 96 strides.

Tyrone and the Wildcat offense never threatened in the first half, the exception to Hinds' 26. From there placekicking ace Terry Adkins' 43-yard field goal attempt fell short with 3:17 left in the initial quarter.

Following Adkins' miss, the Hinds defense throttled Pearl

River, led by defensive end Leroy Brown.

Loyacono kicked extra points following the two Eagle touchdowns, the second of these making it 14-0, three minutes before intermission.

Brown recovered a River fumble at the Cat 11 two plays later, setting up a field goal by Loyacono. The 28-yard kick came with just 24 seconds before half time and produced a 17-0 Hinds' lead.

A scoreless third quarter brought a stream of offensive reserves into the game for PRC. The scrappy bunch, led by freshman quarterback Tony Walker, struck for two quick TD's to almost pull it out. Walker engineered both scoring drives, hitting wingback Randy Burge with touchdown passes of 11 and 27 yards. Both scores came after splendid scrambles by Walker, the second with 1:06 on the clock. Adkins, who kicked the first Wildcat conversion missed following the final tally to leave it 17-13.

The loss dropped Pearl River's 1974 final record to 4-4, and upped the Hinds' ledger to 5-3-1.

UNIVERSITY, MISS. — A rare book, one of only 1,000 published in 1896, has been presented to the University of Mississippi School of Law Library by W. R. Swanier, Boyd pickle Bearcats

by David Pierson
The Pickle Bowl-bound Pass High Pirates, with the help of a stonewall defense, stopped the Long Beach Bearcats 16-6 Friday night before a surprisingly large crowd. Many fans, braving the cold and wet weather, watched as the Pirates held the Bearcats to 118 yards total offense.

The Bearcat defense was almost equal to the challenge, but critical Bearcat turnovers and a timely and effective Pirate short passing attack kept Long Beach contained in their end of the field for most of the game.

On the first play from scrimmage, Bearcat running back Albert Snow fumbled the ball at the Long Beach 36, setting up the Pirates first score. Pass Christian, going exclusively with running plays, moved to the six yard line and appeared willing to settle for a 23 yard field goal attempt when the Bearcat defense held. But holder Aaron Swanier rolled right with the ball and passed into the end zone to Thomas Boyd for six points. Boyd then successfully ran the two point conversion, and Pass Christian led 8-0 with 6:52 left in the first quarter.

In its best sustained drive of the night, Long Beach took over on its own 22 following the kickoff and marched to the Pirate 23 before the Pass High defense held. The drive accounted for almost half of the Bearcats total offense for the game.

Midway through the second quarter the Bearcats got on the scoreboard following a Pass Christian punt that was partially blocked. Long Beach, taking over at the Pirate 14, scored four plays later when Albert Snow ran in from the four yard line. The two point conversion attempt failed, and the half ended with Pass Christian leading 8-6.

In the third quarter following an exchange of punts, the Pirates drove 42 yards in 12 plays with Boyd scoring from the seven. Boyd then raised the team's point total, as well as his own, to 16 when he scored from two yards out on the conversion.

Long Beach made its final threat midway through the fourth quarter when it moved to the Pirate 34; but, with 6:22 left in the game, Pirate defender Mark Jenkins intercepted a Tommy McKay pass at the 24 and raced to the Pirate 39.

Except for two plays, Pass Christian held the ball for the rest of the game. They drove to the Bearcat 15 before a Bearcat interception appeared to give the Long Beach fans new hope; but on the next play, Bruce Brown snagged his second interception of the night at the Long Beach 30.

The Pirates drove to the Long Beach 10, and Matthew Hammett booted a 27 yard field goal. But Pirate Coach Bill Stevens accepted a Long Beach penalty that erased the three points and gave the Pirates a first down at the five.

Long Beach held, however, and took over at its own 11 yard line with 25 seconds left in the game, only time enough for a ten yard pass play of no consequence.

This weekend, Long Beach travels to St. John for its season finale, and Pass Christian hosts Hancock North Central in its Homecoming. If Pass Christian wins Friday it will clinch the Pascagoula River Conference title.

Meaut guides Greyhounds past Bay High 27-20

by Edward Favre

The Ocean Springs Greyhounds, behind the passing of quarterback Lewis Meaut, defeated the Bay High Tigers 27-20 Friday night in a Gulf Coast Conference game at Tiger Stadium in Bay St. Louis.

Meaut connected with Mark Ashby for a 40-yard touchdown early in the first period. Danny Olier made good on the extra point attempt from placement.

Tiger quarterback Mike Magee hit Arnold Fairconnetue with a 13-yard TD pass later in the first quarter.

The extra point attempt failed giving the Greyhounds a 7-6 lead.

The Greyhounds picked up their second score of the first quarter on a 17-yard pass play to Ned Miller. Danny Olier again made good on the extra point attempt from placement, giving the Greyhounds a 14-6 lead at the end of the first period.

In the second period Ocean Springs picked up two touchdowns. Tody Creel ran the ball in from five yards out. Olier again booted the extra point to make the score 21-6.

The Greyhounds got their final score of the game in the second period when Meaut hit Ned Miller again with a 14-yard TD pass play. The extra point attempt failed, making the halftime score 27-6.

The Tigers fought back in the second half and scored two touchdowns in the fourth quarter but fell short of overtaking the Greyhounds.

Mike Magee hit Arnold Fairconnetue with an 11-yard pass for their first score of the fourth period. Magee converted the two-point conversion to make the score 27-14.

Later in the fourth quarter Fairconnetue returned a Greyhound punt 45 yards for the Tigers final TD of the game. The extra point attempt failed and the game ended with Ocean Springs on top 27-20.

SORTS

Southern, Bowling Green in Mobile

HATTIESBURG, Miss.—The University of Southern Mississippi Golden Eagles, nearing the end of their 1974 grid campaign, will host Bowling Green University Saturday night in Ladd Memorial Stadium in Mobile, Ala.

It will be the first meeting of the two teams and a lot of interest will focus around Southern's ability to halt Bowling Green tailback Dave Preston, the nation's sixth-leading scorer and eighth-leading rusher going into last week's game with Arkansas State.

A 192-pound sophomore, Preston averaged 126.3 yards rushing and scored 72 points in Bowling Green's first eight games.

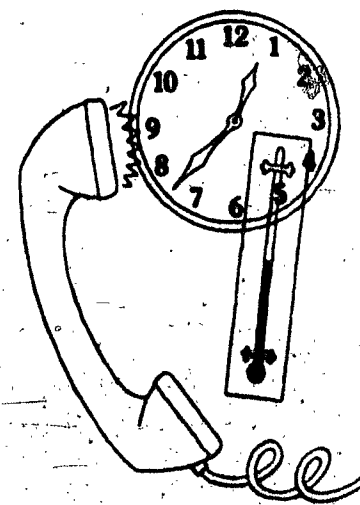

The Falcons, from Bowling Green, Ohio, are members of the Mid-American Conference, which also includes Miami of Ohio, Toledo U., Ohio U., Kent State and Western Michigan.

Prior to meeting Arkansas State, the Falcons had a 4-4 record, with wins over Dayton, Western Michigan, Kent State and Marshall U., and losses to East Carolina, Toledo, Miami of Ohio and Ohio U.

While the Falcons were hosting Arkansas State last week, the Eagles were squeezing past Utah State 7-3. Saturday's game with Bowling Green will mark the second time this year the Eagles have played in Mobile. In their first appearance there, against Virginia Military, reserve quarterback Mark Speyrer sparked a come-from-behind surge that gave the Eagles the edge in a 15-14 thriller.

At 7:30 p.m. at McDonald Stadium, Pass Pirates will play Hancock North Central. During half-time ceremonies, the Queen and the Homecoming Maids will be presented to the public. Leroy Lizana, superintendent, will crown the Queen.

The sophomore class is sponsoring a dance immediately after the game at the Multi-Purpose building, behind the Elementary School. Skin Williams band will provide entertainment.

Hornets cash chips in closing seconds

by Edward Favre

The East Central Hornets came from behind with 30 seconds left in the game Friday night to defeat the St. Stanislaus Rock-A-Chaws 16-12 in a Pascagoula River Conference game at East Central Stadium.

The Rock-A-Chaws scored in the first quarter on a five-yard quarterback keeper by David Weir. The conversion attempt failed.

The first quarter ended with Stanislaus holding a 6-0 lead. In the second quarter David Weir passed 12 yards to David Brown for the Rocks second score of the game. Once again the extra point attempt failed and Stanislaus went into the dressing room holding a 12-0 lead at halftime.

East Central took the kickoff opening the third quarter at their own 20-yard line and marched 80 yards to paydirt with the touchdown coming on a 20-yard run by Daryl Clark. Greg Simmons carried the ball into the end zone for the two point conversion making the score 12-8 in favor of Stanislaus at the end of the third period.

With just 30 seconds left in the game Hornet quarterback Terry Long hit split end Billy Wallace with 43-yard TD pass play. Simmons again ran the ball in for the two-point conversion to end the scoring for the night.

Stanislaus, now 3-6-0 for the season, will close out their season Friday night at Stanislaus Stadium when they host the Vancleave Bulldogs. Game time is 7:30 p.m.

St. John blasts Hancock 31-6

by Edward Favre

The St. John Eagles of Gulfport handed the Hancock North Central Hawks their seventh loss of the season Friday as they overpowered the Hawks 31-6 in Pascagoula River Conference action.

The Eagles held a 13-6 lead at halftime. Leo Romano scored on a one-yard run and Troy Lindsey scored on a 25-yard run. Ricky Villareal made good on the extra point attempt from placement for the Eagles first half scoring.

Daniel Havard scored on a three-yard run in the first half for the Hawks only score of the game. The extra point attempt failed making the score 13-6 at halftime.

Leo Romano took the opening kickoff of the second half and returned it 65-yards for an Eagle touchdown. The extra point attempt failed.

Later in the second half Eagle quarterback Pat Prejean connected with David Otto for a 35-yard TD. Once again the extra point attempt was no good and the score was 25-6.

The Eagles final score came on a five-yard run by Lee Prejean in the fourth quarter to end the scoring for the night.

Hancock North Central will travel to Pass Christian this week to play the Pass Christian Pirates in a Pascagoula River Conference game.

USM planning late homecoming

If you've made plans to attend Homecoming at the University of Southern Mississippi this November, forget it.

Jack D. Triggs, president of the Alumni Association, has pointed out that a traditional "football" homecoming is impossible this year due to extensive stadium renovation.

So alumni and students put their heads together, deciding the athletic event will center around a basketball clash instead of a gridiron one. Dec. 6-7 will therefore see a most unusual sight — thousands of alumni swarming over campus in an "off-season" homecoming.

Tradition and innovation will combine in this most unusual homecoming. Classes will hold reunions, open houses will be held, the Alumni Association will elect their new officers.

But to add a dash of spice, planners are adding an entertainment spectacular to be held in the 9,000 seat coliseum; a reunion of the glamour girls of the campus — former members of the elite Dixie Darlings — and other "bits and pieces."

And, in this day of the shrinking dollar, $5.00 will provide the magic pass to the usual excellent buffet, and the unusual such as the basketball conflict with Lamar University, and the special entertainment feature.

HOW TO CLOSE A POOL

The more than 86,000 American families that installed swimming pools this year may find themselves somewhat dampened when it comes to closing them down. However, even a pool-owner still wet behind the ears doesn't have to find himself in hot water if he sticks close to these pool-closing problem preventers.

1. Remove all bulbs and glass components from pool fixtures.

2. The main switches for all electrically powered pool equipment should be turned off and the fuses removed to prevent accidental starting or storm damage.

3. A canvas or plastic covering will keep debris out of your pool, but be sure it's strong enough to support anyone who might fall or walk onto it.

4. Protect any exposed metal by shutting off all supply valves and draining completely all pipes and equipment.

5. Oil moving parts and give all exposed metal a light coat of grease or oil to protect it from rust.

6. Clean diatomite filters, the type used in most modern pools either by sluicing or spraying the elements.

7. A good way to make sure your pool won't leave you high and dry when you re-open it is to install a new diatomite filter system with Celite filter aids made by Johns-Manville before you close the pool.

8. If you find draining a strain, refrain.

Russell sparkles through lackluster season

UNIVERSITY, Miss., — Memphis-born, Mississippi-bred, Ole Miss senior linebacker Stump Russell makes a bow in both directions as he approaches the pinnacle of a brilliant collegiate career.

In his third season as a Rebel regular, Russell visits Memphis for the final time Saturday where his father was a two-sport dignitary as the Johnny Rebs and Tennessee tangle in Memorial Stadium.

Two weeks hence, he'll travel to Jackson, his adopted stomping grounds, where it was his turn to seize the all-star glitter as a prep linebacker ace as the Rebels host cross-state rival Mississippi State.

But a Sept. 7 postponement of the Tulane game will necessitate Russell and company remaining on the job another week. The Hurricane Carmen-delayed slugfest will be staged in Tulane Stadium at 1:30 p.m. on Nov. 30.

While his surname is totally indicative of this physical makeup, Russell has earned a reputation of rudely relating to opposition blockers and runners what it's like to be "down to earth."

A pre-season second team All-SEC selection by the Birmingham News, he was the Rebels' leading tackler through the first seven games, currently ranking third with 45 solos, 35 assists and two sacks.

He added yet another feather to his cap in early September — when the Associated Press named him the Southeastern Area Lineman of the Week following the upset win over Missouri.

"I guess one could easily say I have two homes," said Russell who scales six-feet in modern day footwear. "There's no doubt it gets me excited to play at both places. But all fields are the same length and width. I just try and get ready every time I go on the field."

His father, Bill, was a fullback for Memphis State from 1952-54. The elder Russell was an All-City back for Southside H. S., leading the city in scoring in 1949. He was Memphis' top hitter in high school baseball, an All-City outfielder in 1950.

Stump followed much in the same lineage. Only his moments of prep grandeur came over three hours to the south.

In Jackson the Reb cruncher was an All-City catcher on the diamond but more impressively, an All-American on the gridiron. Chosen for three All-American prep lists, he was All-MidSouth and All-Southern as a three year linebacking standout for Jackson Murrah.

"I guess it was a pretty big challenge for me to try and live up to what my dad did when he was in school," he said. It has definitely given me something to shoot at."

In the shooting vernacular, he's been quite successful — at gunning down ball carriers by the dozen in a punishing style and blitzing quarterbacks until double vision persists.

"Stump is, without a doubt, one of the best inside backers I've ever been around," said Reb linebacking coach Barry

Wilson. "He's been hampered the last month with a broken wrist but he is constantly around the ball and I couldn't ask for more desire."

The Rebs' leading tackler on four occasions this fall, his top effort has been 13 solos with six assists against Southern Mississippi. However, chartings also reveal nine tackles and three assists against both Missouri and Memphis State. Additionally he has caused two fumbles with solid blows on enemy runners.

Among his more notable performances was a six-tackle outing against Florida a year ago when the short-legged Russell set up a Reb field goal with a 25-yard pass interception return in what proved to be the margin of difference in the 13-10 OM victory.

"This has been a disappointing season in many respects," he said. "We've been close for the most part in all games but one, but have just been killed by the little things and big plays."

"We have some good young players on this team though. There are still three games left and some good things can happen. I know the seniors would like to leave on a good note, hoping to give the team some momentum for next year."

Ole Miss - Tenn. hopeful Saturday of ending SEC skid

One in two chances for the Ole Miss Rebels to score a Southeastern Conference victory this autumn turns up Saturday when the Rebels take on rejuvenated Tennessee in Memphis Memorial Stadium.

The Vols, who walloped Memphis State 34-6 last Saturday in Knoxville, are in similar circumstances. Holding a 4-3-1 worksheet, they are 0-3 in SEC warfare compared with Ole Miss' 0-4 pace.

Thus, unless a tie is the end result, and the two schools haven't deadlocked since 1936, either the Rebs or the Vols will emerge with league win No. 1 Saturday.

And for Ole Miss, a victory couldn't come at a better time. The young Rebels have dropped five consecutive decisions since scoring over Southern Mississippi, 20-14 here Sept. 28.

Start to finish, they blanked Missouri 10-0, lost 15-7 to Memphis State, thumped Southern Mississippi, then began a skid against Alabama 35-21. Thereafter, it was Georgia 49-0, South Carolina for Homecoming, 10-7, Vanderbilt 24-14 and LSU, 24-0.

Tennessee obviously benefitted from an off weekend following its 29-28 edging of Clemson Oct. 26.

The Vol chart, start to current status, lists a 17-17 tie against UCLA, a 17-3 win past Kansas, a 21-0 loss to Auburn, a 17-10 conquest of Tulsa, then successive losses to LSU 21-10, and Alabama, 28-6, ahead of the squeaker past Clemson.

After Saturday's game in Memphis, the first time there since 1967, the Rebs have Mississippi State in Jackson Nov. 23 and Tulane in New Orleans Nov. 30 remaining on their slate.

Tennessee faces Kentucky in Knoxville and Vanderbilt in Nashville, a pair of SEC games.

The Rebs are hopeful over Paul Hofer's chances of playing against the Vols. The junior fullback, out much of the season with a sprained ankle, is a mainstay among Ole Miss running backs.

However, defensive tackle Pete Robertson, holdover starter on the left side, will not play -- he is nursing a nerve injury in his neck -- and defensive end Bill Farris, and tight end Lundy Gunn, both lettermen juniors are doubtful because of knee injuries.

Kenny Lyons is scheduled to start at quarterback. He will be reinforced by Butch Evans, a sophomore, and Bill Malouf. Lyons and Malouf are seniors.

Head coach Ken Cooper noted that Tennessee has shown "vast improvement in recent games. They are a talented team with two of the best backs in America in quarterback Conner and tailback Stanley Morgan.

"Apparently," he continued, "they have resolved their problems on offense, and they have been a stable force throughout the season on defense."

Saturday's game will be the 19th played in Memphis since the series inaugural back in 1902. Tennessee leads in all games played, a total of 40, by 26-13-1, and in SEC results posted since 1933 by 17-13-1. The Rebs cornered last November's decision, in Jackson, 28-18. They are 2-1 in games played in Mississippi, losing 46-21 to the Vols' national champions here in 1951, then upsetting perfect-record Tennessee 38-0 in Jackson in 1969.

You've come to expect and almost adjust to high gasoline prices, yet it's hard to understand an increase in your electric bill.

It's all relevant. There is a fuel shortage and it's affecting the whole economy. You don't get less mileage for your gas — it just costs more. The same holds true for your electric bill. You're not getting less electricity, a kilowatt hour is costing more . . . in some cases electric bills have doubled.

This is not because your electric rates have gone up, but because the cost of fuel — gas, oil, and coal — needed to produce your electricity has gone sky high. The power supplier passes this fuel cost on to your EPA. While we are already absorbing increased production costs, such as wire, poles and maintenance expense, your EPA simply cannot absorb this fuel cost which represents nearly half of your total electric bill each month. If fuel costs were maintained at the same level as last year, your bill would be about the same as a year ago.

We're as concerned about the high cost of power as you are. There is no immediate answer in sight.

YOU STILL GO THE SAME DISTANCE ON A GALLON OF GAS, IT JUST COSTS MORE.

Another weekend has passed with excellent fishing weather as well as for hunting. Geese and duck hunters had some good shooting. A cold front came in on Friday with the weather warming up on Saturday and Sunday.

This cold front affected bass fishing but was good for speckles and they were caught in the Gulf outside the mouth at Pearl River, in Heron Bay, Three Oaks, etc. Plenty reds were also caught most every where according to Helyne Newman and Ray Richardson who got 20 Bull Reds weighing 8 to 15 pounds, with little effort. They were fishing down Ansley way.

Ossie Blaize from Vancleave, Miss. visited his brother Mike for a fishing trip hereabout. They made a nice catch of speckles and flounders. These brothers do both fresh and salt water fishing. Mike specializes in catching flounders.

Duck and geese hunting is paying off according to John Ristolph, Cliff Comeaux and Luke Elliott from Baton Rouge. They made a trip out to the marsh the opening day as guests of August Rauxet on his boat. The party killed 26 ducks and 11 geese. They said a little colder weather would have been much better. Make an annual trip out to the marsh.

David Sibley and Luke are planning a trip next week. Luke will be his guest. Duck hunting is David's favorite sport and the same goes for Luke. They made a good pair.

Yours truly caught a nice flounder on the fly rod the other day. This is an unusual feat.

It is with regret I report the death of Paul Egloff last week. Paul was always a good sport. Sympathy is extended to the family. Paul should have lived to the 20th of November would have been 80. The same as I. My birthday was on the 9th.

Let's talk about soft crabs. Ladner's Fish Market had some last week at $1.00 a crab. Remember when we used to get them for nothing?

Forgot to mention when August Rauxet and his guests were out duck hunting in the marsh they caught two ice boxes of speckles. They were caught mostly on the shad rigs. There is no place like the marsh for fish and game.

Ever hear this one: I call her "Lilac". She can lilac crazy.

The annual St. Stanislaus Sideline Thanksgiving Social will be held in the boys' dining room on Saturday, Nov. 30. Starting time is 7:30 p.m. All guest will be charged $2.50. There is no charge for the men who are members. The ladies who hold tickets must pay the guest fee.

The Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission has urged all trappers to make it a practice to visit their traps daily during the approaching trapping season in order to avoid losses of furbearing animals to predators and to assure prime condition of pelts taken and skinned out as soon as possible.

The Louisiana Wildlife and Fisheries Commission today reminded hunters that the Louisiana rail season would open November 9 and extend through January 17.

J. Burton Angelle, director, said that the daily limit on King and Clapper rails is 15 in the aggregate, with a possession limit of 30. On Sora and Virginia rails, the daily bag and possession limit is 25 in the aggregate.

Shooting hours for rails are one-half hour before sunrise to sunset. He reminded hunters that the gallinule season which opened September 21, would close at sunset November 29.

Funny how eras change things. Speckle trout, or otherwise known as "weak fish", were caught by both commercial fishermen and sports with live shrimp. Today live shrimp are scarce and when they can be bought cost four cents a piece. Today the average fisherman uses artificial plugs such as marilures, side winders and shad rigs for catching the speckle beauties. Dead shrimp today cost $1.10 to $1.25 a pound and we have paid even $1.50 per pound for dead shrimp. Too much to feed them to fish. Almost too much for us to eat.

The second segment of the dove season is now open and will be until Dec. 1st. Speaking to those hunting the fast flying little birds, they are scarce. Maybe a little colder weather is needed to bring 'em in.

The St. Stanislaus Turkey Shoot was held Sunday. It was a success as usual with lucky shooters bringing home some fat turkeys.

Sportsmen have plenty to do these days - when not fishing they are hunting rabbits, squirrels, doves, ducks and geese. All these seasons are open now. Just be sure you have a license and a duck stamp if you hunt ducks.

More on the Sideline Turkey Shoot - Dr. Wolfe, Jr. won the Remington Shotgun and the $50 Gift Certificate. Tommy Capdepon won the trophy and a turkey.

Understand Judge Dick Homes spent the weekend at Champaign, Ill. on a pheasant hunt. More on this next week.

Met two young men who are hunters and fishermen. They are David and Stephen Trelles. They enjoy both sports and go on every occasion. They are students at Bay High.

Three Oak Bayou is a wonderful place to troll for speckle trout. From its mouth to Skinner's Hole, is a good place to catch big croakers, ground mullets, red fish, sheepshead etc. The nearest place to Three Oak is from LaFrance's Camp.

Speaking of sheepshead, also known as (convict), it is a Conflict or communications is topic

How can educational leaders cope with militant groups who would bring strife into the classroom? Is there an alternative to such turmoil?

Teachers, administrators and school board members from Mississippi, Louisiana, Alabama, and Florida have

Warner named chairman

R. L. Warner of Waveland has been named chairman of the University of Mississippi's Hancock County Alumni Activities Committee.

This committee is one of 82 across Mississippi and in Memphis created by the University and alumni to increase communication between the school and its graduates and to involve alumni in continuing support of Ole Miss.

The participants in the Alumni Activities Program work as local representatives of the University and are involved in projects in coordination with various campus offices. The offices include Admissions, Development, Public Relations, Continuing Education, Athletics, and the Alumni Association.

Students and high school counselors from the Hancock County area are encouraged to contact any member of the committee for information about Ole Miss. Prospective students and counselors from Mississippi may also call the University Admissions Office toll-free at 1-800-222-5102.

Other members of the Hancock County committee are Mrs. R. L. Warner, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph W. Gex, Donald M. Favre, Joe D. McCullough, James Thrifflay and Mrs. Virginia Seal Wagner.

been invited to attend a conference, entitled, "Negotiations: Conflict or Communications?" at the University of Southern Mississippi-Gulf Park on Thursday and Friday, Nov. 14-15.

Registration will be in Hardy Hall at 9 a.m. on Thursday, Nov. 14, announced Gene Tinnon, director of conferences and workshops.

UT-Ole Miss

1949, Ole Miss picking up decisions in 1947, 1948, 1957, 1961, 1963, and 1965.

The Rebs' first conquest in Knoxville was registered by the Jake Gibbs-led national champions of 1960, a 24-3 victory. Thereafter, the Rebs added triumphs in 1962 (19-6), 1964 (30-0) and 1966 (14-7) before losing the shutouts of 1968 and 1972, 31-0 and 17-0.

In the tradition of the late Gen. Bob Neyland, Tennessee was a single wing team long after most schools had turned to "T"-style football. The last Vol club with single wing attributes was the 1963 outfit.

The Rebs have claimed 10 of the last 13 decisions rendered, and last year's 28-18 upset stained the Vol record almost beyond repair, even if they did receive and accept a Gator Bowl bid late that afternoon in Jackson.

For that reason, Ole Miss can expect few favors Saturday in Memphis in the first game there since 1967 but the 19th series game since the inaugural '02. The Vols lead in results posted in the Bluff City by 10-7-1.

The only Reb coach to pick up a margin over the Vols was Johnny Vaught. His record in 20 games (1947-69 and 1973) was 13-7-0.

Saturday's skirmish is the first for new head coach Ken Cooper.

states provides a legal structure for collective bargaining," said Dr. David Stewart of the USM Department of Educational Administration and Supervision. "The remaining states are sure to feel increasing pressures."

Dr. Stewart said that educational leaders need to develop the ability to deal with militancy and possible conflict. "They need to know what has happened, what is happening, and how others across the nation are dealing with these perplexing issues," he said.

The conference will combine lectures by experienced professionals with small-group activities utilizing simulation experiences to give participants increased insight into the positive and negative aspects of negotiation.

School systems are invited to take an entire team of teachers, administrators and board members to this conference.

Registration fee of $38 per person includes instructional materials, lunch Thursday evening and seafood buffet Thursday evening.

For additional information, contact Gene Tinnon, Southern Station, Box 56, Hattiesburg, Miss., 39401, telephone 266-4306.

Tips For Energy Savers

You can help fight inflation and the high cost of energy by taking steps now to conserve heating fuels, electricity and gasoline. Saving energy means a saving in dollars -- more important than ever in the face of higher prices.

Many useful energy and money-saving ideas for consumers are listed in the new Federal Energy Administration booklet, Tips for Energy Savers. Single copies are available free from Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colorado 81009.

According to the booklet, you can conserve energy not only in household heating, cooling, and appliance use, but also in the workshop, yard and garden, in home planning, and of course in driving the family car.

In addition to the popular fuel-saving tips of lowering the thermostat in winter to 65-68 degrees during the day and to 60 degrees at night, and driving at 55 miles per hour, some not so familiar ways to save energy and money are listed in Tips for Energy Savers. They include:

Consider the advantages of a clock thermostat which will automatically turn the heat down at a regular hour before you retire and turn it up just before you awake.

Repair all leaky faucets, especially hot water faucets, as quickly as possible. Heating water is second only to heating and cooling residences in energy consumption.

Separate clothes drying loads into heavy and light-weight items. Since the lighter ones take less drying time, the dryer doesn't have to be on as long for these loads.

Dry your clothes in consecutive loads. Once the dryer is warm, it cuts down on initial energy consumption.

Use higher lumen-per-watt lights. A fluorescent lamp, for instance, is more than three or four times as efficient as an incandescent bulb. Use fluorescent lights in the kitchen and bathroom. A single long tube is more energy-efficient and economical than two shorter tubes. One 40-watt fluorescent light provides more light than three 60-watt incandescent bulbs and can save you money. Similarly, use one large incandescent bulb instead of several small ones.

Keep lamps and lighting fixtures clean. Dirt absorbs light.

Keep cutting edges sharp on electrical tools. A sharp saw or bit cuts more quickly, and therefore uses less power.

Use natural compost from your own yard cuttings for fertilizer. Petroleum and natural gas generally are used as raw materials and for fuel in manufacturing artificial fertilizers.

Whenever possible, buy products made of recycled materials or those which offer opportunities for recycling, such as steel, aluminum, paper and glass. More energy is used in production of products from virgin materials than from recycled or reclaimed materials.

Tips for Energy Savers (Free) is just one of more than 250 Federal publications listed in the Winter edition of the Consumer Information Index. Published quarterly by the Consumer Information Center of the General Services Administration, the Index is available free from Consumer Information, Pueblo, Colorado 81009 and at Federal Information Centers located throughout the country.

THE HOLE TOOTH

The Natural History Museum in Nottingham, England, has a new display -- an Ice Age mammoth's tooth, 9 1/2 inches long, weighing about eight pounds, which was found, nearby by gravel quarry workers.
